Cuban Rebel Chief Is Captured

GEN. MENOCA ABOARD SHIP ON WAY TO HAVANA

Surrender Seen as End of Revolt but Fighting Is Not Ended

Havana—(AP)—Mario G. Menocal, once president of Cuba but now a prisoner of war, was on the way to Havana today aboard a gunboat, while the rebels who supported his revolt against President Machado continued their fight.

Menocal surrendered last night with Colonel Carlos Mendieta, grey-haired veteran of the war for independence, to the communists in the eastern part of the island even after there were reports of scattered fighting in the provinces of the interior. The gunboat, delayed by storm, probably will reach here tonight.

President Machado, who carried the fighting to the enemy by going to Santa Clara on Thursday, informed the palace today that he is permitting the rebels to surrender and will come back to the capital tomorrow.

The surrender was viewed by government supporters as the turning point of the seven-day revolution which began last Sunday morning.

Seventeen other rebels yielded in Pinar del Rio province, but sharp fighting between revolutionaries and government troops continued in the eastern part of the island even after the surrender of revolutionary leaders in the western area.

The first rebel victory over government soldiery was reported from Rancho Velez, Santa Clara province, with eight soldiers killed and numerous casualties attending. Government troops were routed in a brisk battle and awaited further reinforcements before renewing the engagement.

Other spirited anti-climaxes to the Menocal surrender came in brisk battles in the Santi Spiritus region and at various other points in Santa Clara province, where revolutionary forces, unaware of their leader's arrest, made further attacks upon punitive government expeditions.

The surrender of General Menocal and his party came in dramatic fashion, reports from the interior said. They were sighted in the afternoon by a member of the crew of the gunboat near the banks of the River Verde in the extreme western part of the province. Troops ashore were notified and they forced the fugitives toward the vessel, where they gave themselves up without resistance.

They had been without food for many hours and were exhausted by their long flight through the hill and lake regions of western Cuba. They were invited to have lunch with the officers and accorded every convenience for their comfort.

News of the government's success spread quickly through Havana and excited groups gathered on street corners to discuss it according to their sympathies. Official quarters said only one insurgent leader, Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor on Havana, was unaccounted for and that the backbone of the revolt had been broken.

Rebel sources said, however, that the war against the government would go on and that they would not make peace until President Machado resigns and constitutional guarantees are restored.

Guerrilla Warfare
While army headquarters reported the subsiding of groups of rebels in Santa Clara province, other reports said insurgents waged guerrilla war in raids on Yateras, Oriente province, and Baez, Santa Clara.

At Yateras, insurgents burned a cafe after emptying it of provisions. Horses and provisions were seized at Baez, not far from the point where rebels recently fired a railway bridge and station.

The city of Havana resumed its midsummer quiet and little, if any, was heard of the fighting.

In Congress Race

GEORGE W. BLANCHARD

Blanchard Is Favored For Cooper Seat

Edgerton Senator Indorsed at Caucus After 12 Ballots Are Taken

Burlington, Wis.—(AP)—State Senator George W. Blanchard, Edgerton, conservative floor leader, today had the endorsement of a district caucus as Republican candidate for congress from the First Wisconsin district.

Although each of the five counties originally supported favorite sons, the issue was between Senator Blanchard and Senator Conrad Shearer, Kenosha, until the deadlock was broken on the twelfth ballot in a four-hour session last night. The break came when the Walworth county delegation, steady supporters of the Kenosha senator, split their vote between the leaders.

Senator Walter S. Goodland, Racine, trailed along on all the ballots. It was his support, combined with that of District Attorney Herman Salen of Waubesa, which finally swung the ballot in Senator Blanchard's favor.

The vote on the final ballot was: Blanchard 132; Shearer 103; Goodland 8; and Salen 4. Each delegation controlled 50 votes and 125 was needed to determine the winner. Another candidate already in the field is Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper, Racine, widow of the congressional representative whose death created the vacancy which may be filled at the discretion of Gov. Philip LaFollette by a special election. The governor has not announced an election.

BOUMA SOCIALIST CHOICE

Racine—(AP)—O. J. Bouma, organizing secretary for the Socialist party here and former Manitowish candidate for congress from the First district at a caucus held here last night. He received 94 votes; L. P. Christensen, Racine, received 24; and S. S. Walkup, Kenosha, 12.

WAUSAU PLANT SAVED WHEN FIRE IS CURBED

Wausau—(AP)—Flames which threatened to destroy the $2,000,000 plant of the Underwood Veneer company and several nearby residences were brought under control last night and confined to lumber stacked out of doors to cure.

The fire, of undetermined origin, was discovered soon after it started. Because of the dryness of the lumber stacks, piled 25 feet high, firemen centered their efforts on waiting down other materials in the yards and protecting homes endangered by burning embers.

O. C. Lemke, recently resigned from the conservation commission, is president of the company. Operation of the plant at full capacity was resumed this week. Company officials indicated the loss would be in excess of $10,000.

LEGION GATHERS FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION

Chippewa Falls—(AP)—Wisconsin highways, railways and airways today led toward Chippewa Falls where the state American legion convention will be held Aug. 16-19. Visitors began crowding the town today for the executive sessions Sunday. The convention proper will get under way Monday with an address by Philip F. LaFollette, Wisconsin's first legislative governor. Persons prominent in national and state circles are scheduled to appear on the program.

RETURN ALLEGED SLAYER St. Joseph, Mo.—(AP)—Missouri officers left here today with Edgar Amos Munn, 38, wanted on a charge of murder near Dexter, Minn. Feb. 19, 1929. Munn was arrested here last night. He waived extradition.

GRILL TWO AS AFTERMATH OF FOUR MURDERS

Officers Quiz Woman and Man to Trace Crimes of Three Murderers

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)—A fourth man and a woman were in custody as officers sought to reveal the full criminal activities of three torch slayers who killed two young couples and burned their bodies to conceal a petty robbery.

The woman, Catherine Keller, 25, niece of a late municipal judge of Ypsilanti, Mich., is said by at least one of the killers to have been with them when they shot and bludgeoned their young victims to death and turned their automobile into a funeral pyre last Tuesday morning.

She denies it and insists she parted from Fred Smith, her sweetheart and one of the killers, and Frank Oliver and David Blackstone, the others, several hours before the robbery and the brutal murders that followed.

In her possession, however, was found a pistol, which officers said they believed was used in the slayings, bloody clothing belonging to Smith and some blood-spattered newspapers.

It is the gun that involves Howard Forwiler, 24, also of Ypsilanti, who is held for investigation. He has identified it as being in Smith's possession as late as Tuesday morning, officers said, and added they had evidence indicating he had supplied the weapon.

Convict Questioned
Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp, of Washtenaw co., and other officers questioned the slayers at length yesterday in Michigan state prison at Jackson, where they are starting sentences of four life terms each. The questioning was designed to determine the connection, if any, of the woman and Forwiler with the murders and to ascertain whether they comprise the gang which has preyed upon "petting parties" for months, assaulting one young woman.

After ten hours of interrogation, Prosecutor Rapp said he had made "a little progress" and expected to resume the questioning today.

Authorities said state police would guard the slayers when, after all information possible has been elicited from them, they are transferred to the branch prison at Marquette where they must spend the remainder of their lives. It was explained that attempts here and at Ypsilanti to wreak summary punishment on the prisoners after they had confessed Thursday night dictated that precaution.

That portion of the killers' confessions which indicated bootleg liquor accounted for the savagery with which they murdered Thomas Wheatley, Harry Lore, Vivian Gold and Anna May Harrison precipitated raids on blind pigs all over the county yesterday.

Otis Oden, 49, from whom the slayers said they obtained their liquor, was arrested late last night as he was leaving for Warren, Mo. He was charged with prohibition law violation, but Prosecutor Rapp said he would question him concerning his knowledge of other crimes attributed to the killers and their suspected confederates.

FIRST LADY CHRISTENS TWO SISTER VESSELS

Newport News, Va.—(AP)—Two sister ships, the "Talamancas" and the "Segovia," first a fleet of six vessels to be built for the United States Fruit company, were christened here today by Mrs. Herbert Hoover at a double launching.

The first of the two broke replicas of ancient Mayan vessels, containing water from the seven seas, against the white hulls of the ships as each started gliding down their ways to dip into the James river.

Between the two launchings, Mrs. Hoover visited the President Coolidge, sister ship to the President Hoover which she sponsored at its launching last December.

Mrs. Hoover will leave later for the president's camp on the Rapidan river. The fleet of six ships is to be built by the United Fruit company at a cost of approximately $11,000,000.

On Way Home

Oslo, Norway—(AP)—Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, sailed for the United States today, stating his visit to Norway had exceeded his greatest expectations and the descriptions of Norse Americans in his native state.

Small Boy Is Drowned At Shiocton

Donald Scott, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Scott, Shiocton, drowned at 10:30 this morning when he fell out of a boat in the Wolf river in the rear of his home.

He was playing in the boat with his 4-year-old sister and cousin, William Gircsis, his uncle, had beached the boat when he returned earlier from a fishing trip up the river.

When the child fell in the water the cousin ran to the house to get his father, Mr. Gircsis. In the meantime, Mrs. Gircsis, sister of the boy, waded toward her brother with a branch. The body disappeared by the time help came and although the child's uncle dove several times he was unable to find the body. Delbert Schwandt of Shiocton went out in a boat with grappling hooks and found the body in 12 feet of water after a half hour's search.

Survivors are the parents; two sisters; one brother; and a grandfather, Henry Krenn. The funeral will be held Monday.

SIX ARRESTED IN FIVE DRY RAIDS

More Than 400 Gallons Beer and Other Liquor Found by U. S. Agents

Madison—(AP)—Six persons were arrested and more than 400 gallons of alleged beer and other intoxicating liquor was found in five raids in and near Madison yesterday by federal prohibition agents.

Mrs. Mary Haselwander, 32, City, was released today under $2,000 bond after her arrest by agents, who said they found 1,015 quarts of beer, three and one-fourth barrels of the alleged intoxicant, and 1,820 gallons of mash at her home yesterday. Preliminary hearing in her case was set for Aug. 31.

Claude Albright, alleged proprietor of the Varsity club, near the town of Westport, will be arraigned Monday after agents said they found intoxicants in the place. Officers reported they found 130 gallons of wine and 55 pints of beer in a raid on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gensel.

They were released under $1,000 bond each pending preliminary hearing.

Tony Castagno, Madison, was free under $1,000 bond after agents said they found 200 quarts of beer, 144 pints of home brew, and three gallons of wine. Mrs. Philip Corona, Madison, was arrested in another raid, and will be arraigned Monday.

Five other places, all in Madison, were raided by agents Thursday.

WRIT GRANTED AGAINST EMPLOYES OF 101 RANCH

Washington—(AP)—An injunction to restrain employees of the stranded 101 Wild West show from interfering with moving the circus home to Oklahoma was granted today by Justice Joseph W. Cox in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

The justice said, in choosing this solution of a predicament that has bedeviled the insolvent show company here almost two weeks, that the court was without power to help the 40 employees because "obviously" the court could not operate the circus which must move from city to city.

IRISH POLICE IN FUTILE EFFORT TO HALT CLASH

Orangemen and Hibernians in Battle Despite Officers Swinging Clubs

Belfast, Northern Ireland—(AP)—Police waded in swinging their clubs today as the Orangemen charged time after time at the ranks of delegates to the assembly of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Armagh City.

Their reports were futile. Each time they dispersed the fighting mob at one point it clashed at another. A call for assistance was sent here and reinforcements were dispatched immediately.

At Armagh the embattled factions, with the police between, shouted their party songs at each other, the Orangemen joining in "Derry's Walls" and the Hibernians sending back "Foggy Dew."

With difficulty the police restrained them from mixing in a massed battle, but the situation looked so threatening that the shopkeepers put up their shutters and cleared out.

A band of about 20 men wrecked a locomotive near Rich Hill early today and established a blockade along a railroad line on which delegates to the assembly to the Ancient Order of Hibernians were scheduled to travel.

The gang lifted the rails and stopped a train. They made the engine detach the locomotive and started it at full speed toward a gap. It smashed up along the right of way and established an effective barrier against further traffic.

Their action was interpreted as a measure of reprisal against the "Irish Republican army" which prevented Orangemen from holding a meeting at Coothill in the Free State Wednesday. It was thought that unless speedy repairs should be effected, the Hibernian assembly at Armagh would be greatly handicapped.

Rich Hill is in County Armagh, close to the border of the Free State, and is a strong Orange center.

Forced to Wreck Train
Henry Bell, engineer of the wrecked locomotive said he had stopped his train when he saw a red light waved frantically ahead of him. No sooner had he brought it to a halt than he was surrounded by men brandishing pistols.

They told him what to do and when he protested against sending his engine into the gap in the track one of the men sent a bullet over his head.

"The next one's for you," the men warned him, and Bell did as he was told.

As the locomotive struck the broken rails and overturned the gang walked coolly away.

In the Market Hill district of County Armagh trees were felled across roads and telephone wires were cut. At Armagh City a union jack was ripped from its staff in the night.

JOINT ACTION ASKED ON CLAIMS OF INDIANS

Ashland—(AP)—Dist. Atty. G. Arthur Johnson of Ashland today had instructions from the county board to seek conferences with other county officials in regions on which Indian reservations were located to attempt cooperative measures for collection of Indian claims against the federal government.

A committee was appointed to work with Johnson on the proposition. The board approved the work of the Association of Counties of the Western States, a group seeking United action on Indian claims.

Chippewa tribe spokesmen claim the government owes the tribe several million dollars for lumber and alleged treaty violation.

S O S MESSAGE PICKED UP BY U. S. WARSHIP

Seattle, Wash.—(AP)—The U. S. S. West Virginia, messenger of the coast guard radio it had intercepted fragments of a message it believed to be an SOS from a vessel off Cape Blanco.

The message was badly garbled. The West Virginia reported, but the name of the ship appeared to be "Cassas."

The West Virginia, a battleship, is lying in the Seattle harbor and its radio operator was the only one in this vicinity to pick up the message. Cape Blanco is on the southern Oregon coast.

Pangborn, Herndon Each Fined $1,025 For Breaking Aviation Laws Of Japan

Tokio—(AP)—Climaxing a series of mishaps which have beset them since they started a projected globe girdling flight in New York, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American aviators were fined by the district court here today for violation of the strict aviation laws of Japan.

Each fine was 2,050 yen ($1,025). One thousand dollars of each fine was for violating civil aviation laws and $35 for flying over Japanese fortified areas recently when they came here from Khabarovsk, Siberia, to attempt a trans-Pacific flight after they ended their world hop attempt in the Siberian village far behind the time of Harold Gatty and Wiley Post, whom they hoped to succeed as the fastest navigators around the world.

Although Herndon and Pangborn flew to Japan without a permit, government officials were inclined to disregard this until they discovered a motion picture camera in the plane. The fliers admitted taking some pictures but denied they had photographed fortifications.

Japanese patriotic societies urged they be punished and a lengthy investigation preceded the assessment of the fine.

Verbal newspaper bureau officials as asserting that Pangborn and Herndon would be prohibited from flying in Japan again. If enforced, this would mean abandonment of their planned flight to Seattle.

Fall's Daughter Protests U. S. Refusal Of Clemency

Wires Mitchell Public Is Entitled to "More Reasonable Excuse"

Three Rivers, N. M.—(AP)—In a telegram to Attorney General William D. Mitchell, Mrs. C. C. Chase, daughter of Albert B. Fall, today said the public was entitled to a "more reasonable excuse" than the one given recently for refusing executive clemency to the former secretary of the interior.

Mr. Mitchell announced an application for clemency made by New Mexico friends of Mr. Fall had been "filed away" after Justice Hitz, who presided at Fall's bribery trial, and Atlee Pomerene and Leo Rover, who prosecuted him, had failed to recommend a pardon or alteration of sentence.

Fall has been in the state penitentiary at Santa Fe, N. M., for several weeks. He was convicted of accepting a bribe from E. L. Dolansy, wealthy oil man, in connection with leasing of naval oil reserves.

The text of the telegram follows: "Press reports just reaching me quote you as refusing to submit to the president the many petitions, letters and telegrams asking executive clemency for my father, Albert B. Fall, on grounds that three prosecutors refused to advise clemency and that a recent executive order provides that no further action be taken save in exceptional cases."

"May one ask, Mr. Attorney General, has there ever come under your observation or the observation of any of your predecessors a more exceptional case than the one in question, where a man has been convicted of receiving a bribe from a man who has since been acquitted of having given that bribe, or of a run in such physical condition that several of the most distinguished physicians in the United States, most of whom were appointed by the government, have stated on oath that he was unfit to be imprisoned and the government having provided no physician who would say that he was able to serve the sentence imposed?"

"We have asked nothing and expected nothing, but surely the public is entitled to a more reasonable excuse than that three prosecutors did not recommend clemency."

EX-CONVICT DENIES FOX LAKE SLAYING

Juneau—(AP)—Albert Schroeder, former convict charged with the slaying of a woman at John S. Fox Lake, today made a flat denial of guilt when arraigned before Circuit Judge Charles H. Davidson here today.

Three physicians were appointed by the court to examine the suspect at the request of Edward W. Harker, defense counsel. The attorneys were to make the examination in the afternoon. Schroeder was remanded to the county jail without bond.

Authorities charged Schroeder shot Sieber with intent to kill. The cheesemaker formerly lived at Menominee, Wis.

ROBBERS ROUTED BY INTENDED VICTIM

Cambridge, Wis.—(AP)—Frightened when their intended robbery victim turned on them, two robbers fled after an unsuccessful holdup station robbery near here today, the owner Elmer Stockard, fired at them, then hid after them.

The pair drove into the station and struck Stockard over the head with their fists. He was stunned but a second, rushed inside, obtained the revolver and fired twice. Their car, believed stolen from Earl Munson, was found abandoned. It contained several cartons of cigars, cigars and candy.

HOP BERING SEA IN LESS THAN ELEVEN HOURS

Radio Stations Keep in Touch With Plane During 1,067 Mile Flight

Bremerton, Wash.—(AP)—The navy radio here stated at 2 o'clock p. m. (E. S. T.) today that Col. Charles Lindbergh and his wife "apparently" were still on the ground at Karaginisk, Karagin island, off the coast of Siberia at 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Seattle—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were at Karagin island today, having flown to Asia from Alaska across the sea.

Their landing on the island on the east coast of Siberia after a 1,067-mile flight across the Bering sea from Safety bay, near Nome, Alaska, was announced by the naval radio station on St. Paul island.

Several radio stations on the Pacific coast picked up the message, saying the flying vacationers reached the little volcanic island at 1:49 a. m., eastern standard time, (5:49 p. m. on Karagin island).

The Lindberghs left Safety bay at 9 o'clock a. m. Friday (3 o'clock p. m. eastern standard time) and crossed the northern sea in 10 hours and 49 minutes. The story of the flight was told piecemeal in radio reports sent during its progress.

With a 500 gallon supply of fuel the Lindbergh plane left American waters shortly after the fliers had received word of clearing weather to the westward. Fifteen minutes after the takeoff, all Nome watched as the plane disappeared toward Asia.

The St. Paul island radio station made contact with the plane 20 minutes after the takeoff and worked with it at intervals until Mrs. Lindbergh advised she was reeling in her antenna preparatory to landing.

Encounter Fog
Colonel Lindbergh kept the speed of his ship close to 100 miles an hour—the first saving grace—throughout. After about two hours of flying Mrs. Lindbergh reported low fog, a wind of five miles an hour and a smooth sea. She was attempting to make contact with Russian wireless stations in Siberia.

Keeping to the north of the storm area, the plane continued its steady progress. Mrs. Lindbergh reported sighting Cape Navarin, 250 miles west of St. Lawrence island, at 7:40 a. m. eastern standard time, saying the plane was flying high and the visibility good.

At 9:30 p. m., eastern standard time, alert ears heard Mrs. Lindbergh report her position as 75 miles south of Cape Navarin, 3,200 feet in the air and flying over broken ice along the Siberian coast. She was trying to communicate with the steamer Bursat.

The plane landed at 11:39 p. m., eastern standard time, said. "Plane believed to be passing Witgenstein point, Latitude 62 53, longitude 172 30. Flying 5,200 feet. Fog out at sea and east coast inland and above. Expect arrive in three hours unless wind changes. Departure depends on refueling facilities. Plane now conducting tests with Radio 'Q' of New York City."

Japan reported its first connection with the plane at 10:10 p. m., eastern standard time, when Oshima radio station announced it had received a message from Mrs. Lindbergh saying they were passing Cape Olenok, about three-fourths of the distance between Nome and Karaginisk.

The fliers approached Cape Govenia at 12:30 a. m., eastern standard time today. A little more than an hour later Mrs. Lindbergh established communication with the American liner President Cleveland.

At 1:07 a. m., eastern standard time, a Seattle amateur intercepted a message saying the plane had asked the P. Fall station to continue sending the preparations for the landing. The next message announced the plane was on the ground.

The Lindberghs, because of crossing the international date line in the Bering sea, landed in the afternoon of the day after they took off, whereas their actual flying time was ten hours and 49 minutes.

Karagin island, a small body of volcanic origin, lies about 60 miles off the coast of Kamchatka peninsula and is about 1,000 miles from Tokyo. The Lindberghs originally claimed to have landed at a place called Karagin, but while in Nome announced they intended to continue on around the world.

Island Almost Unknown
To the residents of Karagin the plane will be a strange sight, but the islanders themselves doubtless will see strange things there. It is little more than a trading post with a small village of a few hundred natives. So little was known of the island that Lindbergh, in planning his cruise, was not sure whether he should stop there to refuel or to the mainland.

That part of Kamchatka in the vicinity of Karagin is described by the National Geographic society as desolate and uninhabited. To the south, however, the fliers will find grass covered sand hills and forests with a background of volcanic mountains.

Lindbergh previously arranged for a cache of fuel at Karaginisk to supply him for the trip to Petropavlovsk, largest town on the Kamchatka peninsula 350 miles to the south.

Indian Delegates Sail For London Parley Without Gandhi

STILL HOPING FOR AGREEMENT ON GRIEVANCES

Government Denies Mahatma's Allegations of Delhi Pact Violation

Bombay, India.—(AP)—Under dripping clouds and in a melancholy atmosphere, 27 delegates including several princes sailed for England today without Mahatma Gandhi to attend the second round table conference on Indian affairs.

Most of them seemed depressed that the Mahatma was not a fellow passenger, for despite the fact he holds radically different political doctrines they respect him as the leader of the common people. They will arrive in London in time for the meeting of the federal structures committee on Sept. 5.

Gandhi, spurning England's invitation to participate in the conference unless his grievances are satisfied, disappeared overnight to his retreat at Ahmedabad where he announced he would stay until "the government puts me in prison."

Conspicuous among the delegates was Mohan Spuri Jayakar whose frantic eleventh hour efforts failed to compose the differences between Gandhi and Viceroy Willingdon.

"It is tragic that relatively minor issues were allowed at the last moment to wreck the chances of Gandhi's presence at the forthcoming conference," he said. "I hope MacDonald will ultimately persuade Gandhi to compromise."

At Simla yesterday Viceroy Lord Willingdon made public correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and the government respecting tax collection and other matters which influenced the national congress to boycott the round table conference.

Throughout the government insisted there had been no violation of the Delhi pact made by Gandhi and Lord Irwin, the former viceroy. Gandhi's letter asserted that the agreement had been broken. In one letter to the governor of Bombay he charged that peasants had paid taxes under duress and demanded that the money be refunded.

In reply the governor of Bombay asserted that no breach of the Delhi settlement had been involved in the collection of taxes, and that the settlement clearly intended that such taxes should be collected. Neither the government nor the tax collector ever had a repented the position that the collection of land revenues should be dependent on the advice of the conference, the governor wrote, adding that he could not approve the refunding of money already collected.

The governor of the united provinces, in reply to a letter from Gandhi concerning evicted tenants said that the number of victims this year had not been excessive and in some districts had been below normal. He promised a full investigation and said the legislative assembly would consider a provisional scheme for general readjustment of rents.

Gandhi cited these letters as creating a situation making his presence at the round table conference impossible, but the viceroy wrote that the Mahatma's misgivings arose from a misunderstanding of the government's policies and responsibilities. He assured Gandhi that the government had no wish to violate the truce, and expressed the belief that the best way to obtain a real solution of the difficulties was through the round table conference.

SEE BETTER PRICES FOR BADGER CHEESE
Decided Shortage Indicates Increased Prices, Committee Says

Madison.—(AP)—Cheese prices "are decidedly upon an upward trend," the Wisconsin cheese market committee said in a statement issued today. The committee is the one organized last winter at a state-wide meeting in Fond du Lac, and its membership embraces all phases of the industry.

The committee today said there is a decided shortage of cheese, indicating increased prices. It reported current trading stocks and storage holdings are 829,921 pounds less than last week, while the trade output for the state showed a 6.4 per cent increase.

An open meeting was held yesterday, and William Kirsch, secretary said after it that "while waiting for the action of the department of agriculture and markets and the attorney general in regard to the question of the adjournment of the Farmers' Call board, the cheese committee is analyzing market conditions and price trends in the cheese industry."

He said the investigation into the action of the Farmers' Call board to adjourn is nearing completion. Mr. Kirsch also pointed out that twice in the Wisconsin cheese exchange are the highest since the second week in February. Twins are quoted at 133 cents a pound, up three-fourths of a cent.

ASK POLICE TO SEEK FOR STOLEN TOOLS
Police here have been asked to assist in searching for the lost taken by burglars from the Clintonville Canning company last Friday night. Among the articles stolen were a long list of mechanical tools and equipment which, it is believed, the burglars might attempt to dispose of at garages or second hand stores in the vicinity of Clintonville.

Largest Diesel-Powered Tow Boat Is Christened At Ceremony At Dubuque

Dubuque, Iowa.—(AP)—Named for the Iowa-born president of the United States, Herbert Hoover, the world's largest Diesel-powered tow boat today was christened by Mrs. T. Q. Ashburn, wife of the inland waterways corporation head.

Shortly after the ceremony, the boat, captained by a veteran of the lower river, G. R. Rogers, turned its prow southward for the three hour trial voyage on the Mississippi.

The boat bears little resemblance to its predecessors, least of all the romantic packets whose place it takes. Plans followed in the construction of deep sea craft were used in its construction; there are few reminders of the boats that have piled up and down the Mississippi these many years. The big pilot wheel of the kind Mark Train once handled is gone. In its place are two levers which are controlled by small motors, and not by a pilot's brawny arms.

There is no big paddle wheel, side or stern—these have given way on the Herbert Hoover to twin screw propellers.

There are no roaring furnaces, and no stoves to tote wood or coal. Nor are there great smoke stacks, belching forth a trail of black smoke. Instead, there are two dummy stacks, partly for the sake of appearance, and partly for mufflers.

It's a large boat: Its length is 226 feet, 42 inches; and it is 43 feet wide. With 150 tons of fuel oil it draws six feet of water. The machinery pit amidships is 58 feet long and 38 feet wide and houses twin motors each weighing 100 tons. The Diesels together can develop 2,200 horse power.

The Herbert Hoover is capable of moving 10,000 tons of freight in one tow at an average speed of more than four miles an hour upstream and much faster than that down stream.

On the boat is a water purifier and still, and an ice machine. A huge refrigerator is large enough to hold food for a crew of 32 for more than a week. The galley is equipped with oil fired heaters. There are cabins for officers, eight bathrooms, and hot and cold running water.

Advantages claimed for a boat like the Herbert Hoover are smaller operating costs, no time lost in cleaning boilers, no fuel wasted while in port, and absence of effect on condensers and climatic changes.

The Herbert Hoover will be taken down river possibly the latter part of next week. Listed at the port of New Orleans, it is to be put into service between that city and St. Louis.

Poisons Four

A suicide pact which took the lives of four was the final gesture of Mrs. Florine Walz Williams, above, widow of Earle Williams, celebrated film star of the silent days, after her fortune had been swept away and a series of difficulties had dogged her. She, her two children and her 80-year-old mother died of poison in the pact at San Francisco.

1,200 PRESENT AT CHILD REVUE IN PIERCE PARK

300 Children Take Part in Finale of Summer Playground Program

More than 1,200 people crowded into Pierce park pavilion Friday to see the pageant, "Youth in Revue," given by Appleton playground children. Many were standing on picnic tables on the outside of the building, while one man found a "high" class seat on a photographer's ladder.

Broadcasting from station YOUTH, under the announcement of Ben Ratoth, 390 children represented the various lands of childhood in dances, songs and stunts. The program was given before the Court of Tomorrow's Citizen, with Miss Mary Jane Van Ryzin as the court throne.

Gaiety dressed as garden flowers, the smaller children of the playgrounds danced of the daisies. Stiff and spirited the wooden soldiers came from the Toyland. Acrobatic stunts, cartwheels, back flips and camel walks were highlights of the land of Play.

Garbed in paper, frocks of the vegetable kingdom, the message of the land of Good Health was sung by an animated chorus of beets, carrots, corn, potatoes, cabbage and tomatoes. Tiny Tim and his orchestra were in music note costumes from the land of Better Music. Sun bonneted, gingham aproned girls and overalls and straw hatted boys presented the program from the land of Better Schools with songs and a group dance. As a finale the children from all the playgrounds sang the song of citizenship, "I am Proud of Appleton."

The pageant is the first ever attempted in a playground project and it was given as a finale to the summer playground season in the city. Miss Marie Finger wrote the pageant, the songs and directed the work. She was assisted by other playground leaders.

McBride Sees Crisis On Prohibition Next Year

Winona Lake, Ind.—(AP)—F. Scott McBride today predicted the next general election "will nail down prohibition or establish it as an issue for the next generation."

McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-saloon league, spoke here before the National Bible conference, which he warned "if legalized liquor comes back, the saloon will come back."

President Hoover, he said, would be the Republican nominee "after a defeated fight in the convention for a wet platform and a wet candidate," and "the issues as to the presidency will be clearly defined."

"If the dry Democrats succeed in their heroic fight to oust John J. Raskob," McBride said, "a dry Democrat will be nominated and will have a chance at election. . . . If the dry Democratic leaders fall to oust Raskob, Roosevelt and Smith, Raskob, in council with Smith and Roosevelt, will determine the next nomination of the Democratic party."

"The pretended campaign on behalf of Roosevelt today is clearly a move on the part of this tripartite to corral as many votes as possible for the convention, for the candidate that Raskob, Smith and Roosevelt will agree upon. . . ."

Pointing out the loss of three dry representatives from 25 states would give "the wets, even with our present majority of two to one . . . a majority in congress," McBride urged the congressional elections be kept in mind because reapportionment "will reduce to some extent the dry vote in the next congress."

He explained that a larger number of representatives would come from the cities, where "the wet vote is larger than in the rural sections."

MANY BRIGHTER ASPECTS FOR U. S. BUSINESS

Slight Changes During Mid-summer Are Held Favorable Developments

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—(CPA)—Many of the unfavorable factors in business reports have tended to obscure the favorable developments. Thus government information reveals that fluctuations in the general level of wholesale prices have not been so pronounced during the past four weeks. Carloadings, too, have made some recovery over a week ago and, while business activity continues restricted, there are some noticeable improvements in special lines.

The changes, of course, are slight and it is difficult to measure what is going on because midsummer is admittedly a poor season for general business anyhow.

Reports of the mercantile agencies indicate that retail and wholesale trade was well maintained last week, even though it was at a low level due to the season. Very little change is anticipated before the fall demand sets in. The drop in July as against June in the department store sales was of somewhat more than seasonal proportion, but the expectation is that the dollar volume for the whole year will show a constantly improving condition in the autumn months.

Favorable Reports

It is interesting to note that while General Motors' July sales to dealers and consumers were below those in June, there was a 6 per cent increase in comparison with July of last year. July sales of Montgomery Ward were the best since April.

Building construction men foresee a better record for the third quarter than has been witnessed previously this year. There is a narrowing of the gap between the 1931 and the 1930 curve, indicating that a period of stabilization in building contracts is approaching.

Examining specific conditions in individual lines, government reports show that airline traffic continues to increase and that the production of military types of airplanes is most active at the moment. There is every indication that as the passenger and mail business increases there will be more orders for new airplanes.

The electrical business shows a seasonal slackening in appliances. Prices are holding fairly steady in the iron and steel business, even though production is only around 30 per cent of capacity. The volume of sales in the leather business is fair but with some price uncertainty.

Shoe Industry Improves

The attendance is spotty throughout the country, distributor sales now below 1930, but studios are active. Improvement is being maintained in the shoe industry. Retailers' stocks are low and one company in New York state is operating at capacity. A machinery corporation is shipping considerable new machinery to the shoe industry.

While raw cotton prices are lower, medium grade wools are in good demand, raw silk is stronger, July rayon sales set a new record, and there is a good demand for winter underwear. While rubber prices are at a new low, the domestic manufacturing industry is enjoying a fair business in tire replacement sales.

Minerals reveal little change, especially copper, lead and zinc. The tone of the gasoline market is better on account of the increase in domestic consumption, which is 7 1/2 per cent better than last year.

Surveying all these reports one comes to the conclusion that all commodities, when averaged, show considerable resistance to price change. There is a general feeling that commodity prices will rise in the autumn.

T. B. TAKES MANY LIVES IN STATE

Exhibit at Seymour Fair Will Show Results of Disease in Wisconsin

Tuberculosis kills more persons in Wisconsin between the ages of 20 and 40 than any other disease, an exhibit at the Seymour fair at Seymour reveals.

The exhibit is that of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and is being displayed in the exhibit tent of Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, who arranged for the exhibit to be shown at the fair.

In 1930, tuberculosis took the lives of 679 persons between the ages of 20 and 40 in this state. Of this number 358 were women and 321 were men.

This information is shown on the first of the four panels in the exhibit. The second panel, made up of four danger signals, points out some of the early symptoms of the disease and advises persons having any of the symptoms to see their doctor.

The third panel depicts five gears—physical examination, tuberculin test, personal history, the x-ray and frequent sputum tests—the meshing of which helps the doctor to determine whether or not a person has tuberculosis.

The fourth panel gives a pictorial history of the fight against tuberculosis, and points out that since 1908, when the W. A. T. A. was organized the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half.

Agnes Coleman and Ann Pickels, riders—are calling out from atop the broad head of Old John, patriarch of the 43 elephants in the herds with Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey, coming to Appleton, Thursday, Aug. 20.

There are all sorts of attractive girls in the acts and spectacles of The Greatest Show on Earth this year—American beauties, Spanish belles, cuties from Vienna, Hungarian and Magyar knockouts, French, German and English pulse-quickeners, lovely-eyed South American señoritas, Persian peaches, Burmese and Javanese toy honers and some fascinating Russian kids who never had to worry about the 5-year plan. Many of these are members of the new feature thrillers and acts from all portions of the globe and some the imported stars in their own rights. In fact, the pretty girls of all nationalities seem to fill the great tent, even if it is the largest big top ever built and seats 16,000 people.

Heading the imported thrillers is the Orland-Mara Sensation, in which Orland, with lovely Mlle. Mara, on his back, dives from the dome of the huge tent to land upon his chest in a chute in the right far below.

Sportsman Shoots Ducks, Catches Bass On Peshtigo

BY BERT CLAFLIN

I want to tell you of an experience I had one day last October on the Peshtigo River shooting ducks and catching bass from the same spot. It happened this way: I had gone up onto the Peshtigo with the express intention of fishing bass. I took my gun along, however, thinking I might get a stray shot at a duck.

I rowed out to one of the rocky islands, pushed my boat up into the brush along the shore and prepared my fly rod. I knew the water was deep, but figured that a small spinner and pork rind would interest the bass, used with a somewhat heavy sinker. At the third cast I had a strike and soon learned that I had hooked a bass, and a small mouth, for he soon came to the surface and leaped into the air. This was rare sport and I was in no hurry to land him. I let him run until he gave up and turned over onto his back. Then I brought him in and slipped the net under him. As I did that a flock of several blue-bills flew by close in. That gave me an idea, and soon I had set out a flock of decoys that I had brought along in a burlap sack.

I saw no more ducks for some time. In fact, none came along until I had another bass on my hook. When that happened, and just as I was bringing the fish in toward the boat, along came two blue-bills. I tried to grab my gun and at the same time hang on to the bass, but found I could not do it, and so the ducks passed on out of range, although they swung in fairly close to the decoys.

Later on, and this time I did not have a bass hooked, a small flock of scaups came over the island. I called them and they made a wide sweep out into the center of the river, then turned and came directly in over the wooden decoys. I dropped two of them, retrieved them and resumed casting.

I soon had another bass and then more ducks hove in sight. Again I scored on them. Later on I shot a single bird that approached too closely. And so on until noon. At that time I had seven ducks and a nice string of small mouth bass.

It was a rather novel experience, this catching bass and shooting ducks at the same time, yet on the Peshtigo River it is not at all difficult to do. The ducks do not stay on the river and bed up like they do on the inland lakes, however, for the reason the feed is not there for them. They merely alight for a short time probably to rest and then move on. If you are there at the right time you can get them as I did.

REAL BARGAINS IN COMMODITIES NOW AVAILABLE

Close Study Needed to Pick Them Out, However, Babson Says

Babson Park, Mass. — The drastic drop in commodity prices has opened up opportunities of a lifetime for alert business men and consumers. Many basic products have fallen to the point of absurdity. A quantity of crude oil recently sold in East Texas for two and one-half cents a barrel. Imagine buying a barrel of good petroleum, capable of producing twenty gallons of gasoline, for less than one-half the price of a package of chewing gum! This was an extreme case, but the average of East Texas oil is still only thirty cents a barrel. Similar crazy price situations are seen in rubber, copper, cotton, wheat, corn, etc. A pound of rubber at six cents is four cents less than the price of a toy balloon. A bushel of wheat in Kansas City has brought the farmer as low as twenty-five cents, or less than the price of a ticket to the movies. A whole pound of pure copper can be bought for two cents less than the price of a good pair of shoes.

The average price of basic industrial commodities is twenty-seven per cent below last year and ten per cent below the pre-war days. Farm products are even lower, registering twenty-eight per cent below a year ago and twelve per cent under the pre-war average. Retail prices have been slower to drop, but have recently trended downward more sharply. Further readjustments are necessary in some retail lines, but the housewife today is able to buy food and many household necessities cheaper than for many years. She can now buy for eighty cents as much food as $1 would buy last year; as much dry-goods for seventy-nine and one-half cents; as much furniture for 75 cents; as much home furnishings for seventy-eight cents; men's furnishings for eighty-five cents; hosiery for seventy-seven cents; shoes for eighty-three cents; toilet goods and drugs for eighty cents. Although wholesale prices have declined further than retail, the good shopper can now uncover excellent bargains in household needs.

Prices Near Bottom
When commodities sell below the cost of production, which is true of many staple articles today, the time is not far off when the tide will turn and the upward trend begin. Not only are prices of individual commodities low in comparison with production costs, but they are low in comparison with previous depressions and lower in comparison with other commodities. Remember then such a condition of maladjustment never continues indefinitely. It is due to the hammering down of prices through distress selling, and a rebound is sure to occur. Of course, some items have not yet completed their downswing, and further readjustments will occur in special lines. This is typical of a business depression, but does not alter the fact that general prices are already thoroughly deflated.

Raw materials have been hardest hit, particularly commodities depending on world markets, such as copper, wheat, cotton, and rubber. The temporary spurt in prices of these materials on news of the War Debt Moratorium has since been mostly cancelled. Nevertheless, even though settled conditions in Europe are still a long way off, the absurdly low prices at which these commodities are selling are steadily bringing about a better adjustment between supply and demand which will result in an upward trend.

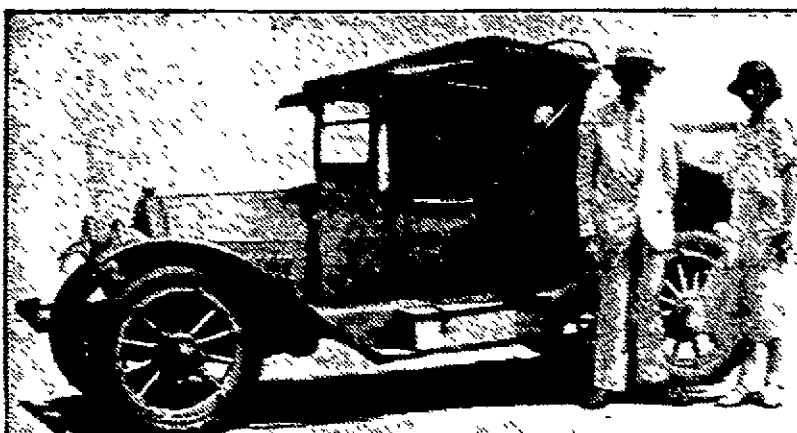

Better Prices Will Help Business
Falling commodity prices are the greatest single drawback to business. Hence the first definite assurance that price stability has been reached and the upward begun, would prove a wonderful stimulant to business.

When prices are falling buying is strictly on a hand-to-mouth basis. This applies to manufacturers who buy raw and semi-finished materials, and the wholesaler, retailer, and consumer, who buy the finished products. As soon, however, as people become convinced that better prices are in prospect they begin to stock up. Hence, a rise in commodities is always one of the first barometers of business recovery. Even the stock market, which used to precede commodity prices in forecasting business improvement, now appears to be waiting for its cue from the action of commodities.

Many business men and consumers make the mistake of waiting too long in the hope of getting the very lowest price. While they hesitate their more alert neighbors and competitors make purchases anywhere in the bottom price zone, thereby gaining a tremendous advantage during the next upward trend in business. Inventories can either make or break a business. During a decline in prices the only way to succeed is to buy strictly on a hand-to-mouth basis. When prices start upward, however, a full stockroom is a very profitable asset, which, in itself, can often change the income statement from red ink to black.

Furthermore, when business is again moving along at a faster pace the concern that is using materials bought at low cost gets the lion's share of the sales, because he can afford to sell below his less-forgotten competitors. Similarly, the housewife who lays in ample stocks of dry-goods, furnishings, and other necessities at times like these has an economic advantage over the majority who always wait until prices go well on their upward way. Then they must compete with each other.

SKULLS FOUND IN CAVE LINKED WITH AZTEC AGE

Oscuela, Mo. — (AP) — Nine skulls, found in an area 50 inches in diameter six feet below the floor of a cave near here, are attributed to an age possibly as early as the Aztec by Dr. E. B. Branson of the University of Missouri department of geology and geography.

Dr. Branson is convinced the skulls antedate the modern American Indian.

The excavations will be continued with funds from the state historical society and private individuals.

for goods, thus raising prices further.

In view of the disastrous experience with price-fixing in the past few years, I should think farmers and business men alike would have sold shivers at any suggestion of arbitrary control of commodities.

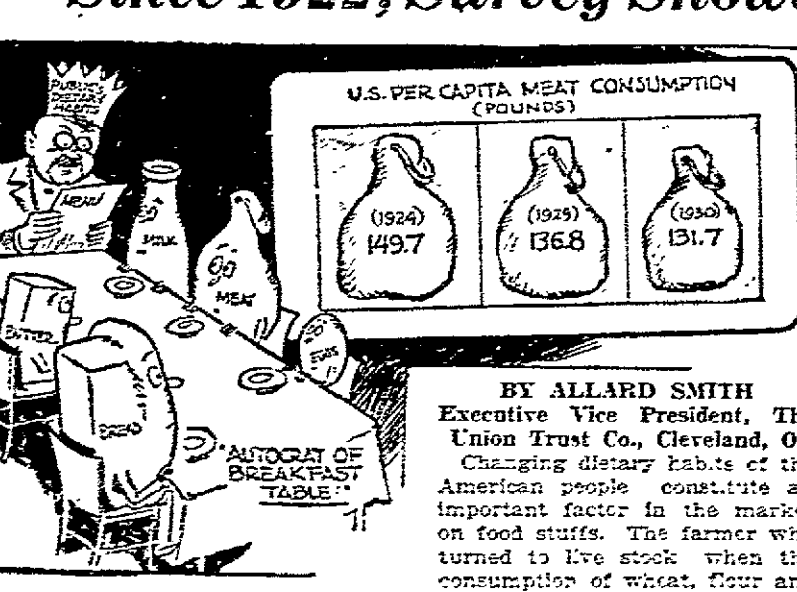

The natural law of supply and demand must govern prices in the long run. We shall work out of this world depression, but it will not be through any price fixing schemes. Two years ago the Farm Board was set up to stabilize farm prices and markets, but grains are today selling for less than one-half what they were then. The recent collapse of the European nitrogen cartel, one of the oldest and strongest of the price-fixing combinations, is just another case of failure due to interference with the natural law of supply and demand. Rubber is still suffering from over-production fostered under the Stevenson Plan, which, in effect, was a price-fixing plan. The present depression in Brazil and South America had its origin in the same artificially bolstered coffee prices and the subsequent encouragement of over-production. The recent collapse in rosin and turpentine prices in the United States is really a reaction from the unnatural maintenance of prices by the Farm Board in the face of an over-supply.

During severe business depressions there is always a hue and cry raised for government subsidies, government restrictions, and other measures for bolstering prices. We shall face the demand of such legislation in the next congress. Instead of helping the situation, enactment of such laws would hold back return of prosperity. Left alone, the commodity situation will gradually right itself. The wise business man and consumer will resist all attempts at artificial price-fixing, government aid, or otherwise. Instead he will concentrate his purchasing on outstanding bargains in commodities. By so doing he will perform a service by providing a market for others who are forced to sell as well as assuring himself of future profits.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 20 per cent below normal and 712 per cent below what it was a year ago.

Demand For Meats Lowest Since 1922, Survey Shows

Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

Changing dietary habits of the American people constitute an important factor in the market on food stuffs. The farmer who turned to live stock when the consumption of what flour and cornmeal fell off some 40 per cent between 1929 and 1930 now finds a decline in the demand for his products.

Production and consumption of meats in 1930 reached the lowest total since 1922, according to government estimates, while the per capita consumption was smaller than in any year since 1913. Depression conditions which have interfered with the earning capacity of many probably accounts for a part of the decrease, but the urge for the "vitalistic" food, stuffs has been largely responsible.

Per capita consumption of all meats was 131.7 pounds in 1930 which compares with 136.8 pounds in 1929 and 149.7 pounds in 1924. The consumption of beef per capita in 1930 was 59.1 pounds against 51.4 pounds in 1929. Lamb and mutton consumption has been increasing since 1922 and was the largest in 1930 of any year in a decade. Pork consumption decreased sharply.

Contrasting with the decreased use of meat there has been a marked increase starting with 1920, in the use of dairy products, and in the same period a 55 per cent increase in the consumption of green vegetables and fruits. Some of this latter increase must be credited to the improved methods of refrigerated shipment and of storage and sale in modern food depots.

In order to keep step with the changing dietary habits of the people farmers have shifted the character of their crops. Live stock, fruits, vegetables and dairy have to a considerable extent replaced staple crops of grain and the raising of live stock may center still further on dairy animals rather than those raised for meat. Although wheat is dramatized as the great farm crop, it furnishes only 7.89 per cent of the farmer's cash income each year, while eggs and chickens account for 8.15 per cent. These products, together with milk, cotton, cattle and hogs produce practically 60 per cent of the farmer's cash.

Wall Street, New York — Wall Street would feel happier if the bond market would join stocks in showing some tendency to rally. Once regarded as the bulwark of investment, the railroad bond list of the market has been the most disappointing in recent months. In their fight for an increase in freight rates, spokesmen for the railroads have placed so much emphasis on the danger of removal of the railroad bonds from the legal list for savings banks that investors are perhaps feeling undue alarm over such a contingency.

The consequences undeniably would be serious, but the wholesale dumping of bonds simply because they have been removed from the list is unlikely. The New York law, generally regarded as a model, forbids new purchases by the savings banks or for trust funds of bonds not on the legal list. Concerning the property of holding to previous purchases, the same law says:

"Wherever any securities purchased by either before or since the time such purchase was made, ceased to be an authorized investment for the monies of a savings bank, the superintendent of banks may, in his discretion, require such savings bank to sell such securities."

If certain railroad bonds fail to meet the requirements this year, the bonds, assuming that no change be made in the law, would not be eligible again for a period of five years. The effect on the market for new issues would be pronounced. Railroads would have to pay higher interest charges on their borrowed money, because of the necessity of selling new bonds to a class of investors requiring a higher return than savings banks.

Discretion power of the superintendent of banks is rarely exercised and his authority to use it has not been tested in the courts. It is hazardous to predict what any public official would do, but it appears likely that the discretion of savings banks will be permitted to function as in the past. Savings banks are unlikely to hold bonds that seem to be on the way to default. Earnings of the railroads are available monthly and investors need not wait for any action such as removal from an approved list to decide whether their holdings are safe.

Trustees Responsible
Trustees are in a more ticklish position. They are personally responsible for their actions in guiding the investment of estate funds. If bonds are removed from the legal list, they are more likely than the savings banks to refuse to carry previous purchases even though convinced of their safety. As for life insurance companies, their investment is broader. They have to follow the call of the market. They may purchase bonds, debentures, notes, preferred or guaranteed stocks, of any solvent institution incorporated in this country. If such institution, or in the case of guaranteed stocks, the guarantor, during each of the five years next preceding such investment shall have earned a sum, applicable to dividends, equal at least to 4 per cent of the par value of all the stock outstanding in each of the five years.

When these requirements were set up, insurance companies were given 20 years, plus extensions, in which to dispose of any securities previously purchased which did not meet the standards. Beyond the judgment of the corporation, there is no pressure on the life insurance companies to dispose of investments that fall out of the legal class. The prominent part played in the reorganizations of railroads by representatives of the life insurance companies is evidence of that. Many companies hold such large blocks of railroad bonds that a ready market is not available.

FAVOR CHANGE IN DUCK HUNT SEASON IN STATE

Wausau — (AP) — A proposal to change the opening of the duck hunting season in Wisconsin from Sept. 15 to Oct. 1, to conform with federal migratory game laws, was unanimously opposed by speakers at a public hearing conducted here Thursday night by the state conservation commission.

Delegations of hunters from Oshkosh, Mayville, Butte des Morts, Mosinee and Wausau contended this has been a good season for the breeding of ducks, despite the drought. They also stated the duck flight is best in Wisconsin during September and that residents of the state should not be deprived of hunting privileges which would primarily benefit hunters in southern states.

5-SHILLING AND CROWN FAST DISAPPEARING

London — (AP) — England has two coins which are seldom seen and not much wanted by superstitious Britons.

The 5-shilling piece, or "crown," and the 4-shilling piece are fast disappearing from circulation and are no longer wanted.

To the crown attaches a bad-luck myth like that owned by American 22 bills.

A HAUNTING HOBBY
London — H. Reid, of Withdean, Brighton, has a hobby for all we care. It's hunting haunted houses. "I have been searching for a real one since I was ten years old," he informs, "I have never seen one, although I am now 66 and have slept in some of the best-known haunted houses in the country. I have slept in the beds of people who have been murdered and often I have visited graveyards on the darkest nights, but all to no avail."

THAT "THIRD DEGREE"

The Wickersham commission may be right in its information regarding the use of the third degree by the police of some cities investigated.

If the facts cited are true, it is something that should be remedied. But the remedy does not lie in a mere moral platitudes that the rights of prisoners must be safeguarded. The police do not use harsh methods for the fun of it. Other elements have stimulated the growth of this practice.

One of them is politics. Political control of police departments does not make for efficient police. The political appointee in a high ranking position is out for a record regardless of methods. Usually it is convictions or jobs.

Another factor responsible is the criminal court procedure in some states providing many technicalities and loop-holes which permit easy escape from the clutches of the law. Most European countries permit no third degree methods, but their police are outside the influence of politics and they have the support of criminal laws and methods of court procedure which are effective, yet always protect individual rights. There is little or no crime problem there.

While the question of police brutalities is important and not to be condoned, it is not so important as the fact that crime is making war on society and that society will have to be strident to win.

It is society's job to help the police who so often find themselves helpless before the wiles of criminal lawyers using cumbersome and ancient practices to trip the law in its honest attempt to put criminals where they belong.

The question for which the Wickersham committee was asked to find the answer was and is this: "How can life and property in this country be made safer from the arrogance of crime?"

Calling attention to third degree practices in handling prisoners does not present a cure for crime. Society will find the answer to that question by changing its attitude from one of trembling acceptance of the theory that crime has an upper hand to one of vigorous attack and police support by making it difficult for criminals to escape justice.

Then there will be no need for the use of third degree methods.

WE PAY, ITALY RECEIVES

As the giant Conte Grande, pride of one of the great Italian lines, sped out of New York harbor last Saturday for Naples, it carried 1100 third class passengers at $90.00 a head, comprising families of Italians still working in this country.

The fathers who have jobs are holding onto them and, in spite of the cost of shipment, realize they can do better financially by supporting their families in Italy where living costs are so much cheaper where they work here where wages are so much higher.

This is a fair sample of the men who know no country, the internationalists.

They reckon only with their own advantages, their own income, and avoid wherever possible any burden or obligation that may be owed to those about them or the rest of the people of the country that supplies them with that income.

That part of the family income that is necessarily spent in supporting its members belongs, of right, to the community from which the income is derived, certainly at least the country in which it is earned. And although there be financial advantages at times in avoiding this rule the one who has any degree of fairness in his makeup does not even attempt avoidance.

The steamship company manager declared, "A large family may live in great comfort in Italy for the equivalent of $25.00 a month and thus the Italian workman in this country may support his family in Italy for less than the rent required of him here."

A nation like ours can stand a lot of this whittling process but this is only one of many forms whereby other parts of the world acquire inequitable advantages. In time drains of this kind will be felt.

What are we going to do about it?

ALL IN A LIFETIME

The terrific speed with which the world changes may have slowed down somewhat within the last decade or two. Nevertheless, one man's life can still span amazing developments. Between boyhood and manhood one can still watch a great rearrangement of the scenery.

There died in Panama the other day one Basil Burns Duncan, said to be the oldest American on the isthmus—he was 88—and a surviving veteran of the old French attempt to dig the Panama canal.

Duncan went to Panama just after the trans-isthmian railroad had been completed. The isthmus then was one stage of the road to California. Passengers came down from New York by sea, crossed the narrow neck of land by train or wagon, and took ship on the Pacific side for San Francisco. The canal was still only a dream; Cape Horn, far to the south, was still a surf-fringed terror for sailormen.

Then the French started to dig the canal; and Duncan was one of the four men chosen to turn the first sods. The four stood face to face with lifted picks. At a signal they drove them into the ground, and work on the Panama Canal had begun.

What Duncan saw, during the next decade or two, was a New World epic. Disaster beset the French at every hand. "Yellow jack" made Panama notorious throughout the world. The French finally quit, leaving machinery to be overgrown by the jungle. Then, after years of quiet, the Americans came, and the canal was finished; and there, all the time, was Duncan, a part of the whole thing, soldier in the army that joined two seas.

Already the pre-canal era looks remote. The day when ships to the Pacific had to round dreaded Cape Horn is fabulous, dim with the mists of a time that is very far away. Yet this man, who died only the other day, saw it all. He went to Panama when it was a pest hole and saw it become one of the world's busiest places.

A man's life can span great changes in the modern world.

THE PAID REFORMER

Philip Yarrow, who claims the title of superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance Association, exposes the mistake in compensating such men according to the results they get.

Mr. Yarrow started on a campaign against immoral books, with which the country is flooded, but he was to receive one-half of all fines collected from persons convicted on his information.

A while ago a jury returned a verdict of $5,000 damages against him for malicious prosecution in that, attempting to buy a certain salacious book from a book dealer who did not have it, he induced this man to get it for him and then arrested him for so doing, the dealer claiming he had no idea what was in the book.

Jurors and judges as well have always looked with critical disapprobation upon the person who induces another to commit an offense for the royalty he may collect from its commission.

Such is not the enforcement of law but the turning over of the laws into private hands for the revenue they may get out of it. It has always been attended with unfortunate circumstances. Too often it is the reformer who needs reformation of his own greed.

Such a system is just another racket.

A survey made by the University of Idaho indicated 27.5 per cent of the farms in the state used electricity for work.

The $10,000 two-story depot of Rhyolite, Nev., houses the only family left in the mining camp, which once had a population of thousands.

More than $10,000,000 worth of livestock was handled through the stockyards at Montgomery, Ala., during 1930.

In parts of the Philippine Islands, cotton is grown as a second crop, being planted in the dry season after rice has been harvested.

Grape vines planted near San Diego, Cal., 44 years ago still are producing, although they are not irrigated.

The average production of 2,143 dairy cows on test in Tennessee improvement associations in April was 544 pounds of milk.

North Carolina farmers purchase about 500,000 tons of hay annually from other states.

The value of Nebraska land now is rated as six per cent above pre-war level.

Hollywood Screenings

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—it's an ill wind that blows no player new opportunities.

Peggy Shannon and Sylvia Sydney, who fell into choice roles intended for Clara Bow and thus scored starring status with none of the tedium of hits and flops, are not the only ones to profit by the misfortunes of fellow players.

Extra girls who are singled from the mob to replace temperamental stars are creatures confined, sad to relate, almost wholly to fiction.

Bad Breaks Good

However, the breaks are the breaks, and—Robert Williams, fresh from a startlingly effective screen debut in "Rebound," was all set for a meaty part in "Consolidation Marriage."

Then Williams was injured in a fall. Production could not be delayed and Matt Moore, who has not been seen in pictures in a long time, was given the role. It may mean a comeback for Moore.

John Boles was ready to take the lead in "Strictly Dishonorable," a great part. The studio had wanted Paul Lukas, but the latter was busy at his own studio. Then Boles developed dental trouble. Lukas finished his other work, and now Lukas steps in.

Louis Wolheim was to have played the managing editor in "The Front Page." That role is outstanding in the picture. Whether or not he could have given the character as finished and subtle an interpretation as did Adolphe Menjou, who replaced him, will never be known. Wolheim's brief illness was ended by his sudden death.

Menjou's performance not only broke the chains of a type which had been associated with him for years, but raised him immeasurably in the graces of fans and producers alike.

It's Happened Before
George Walsh, the heroic screen actor of several years ago, was cast as "Ben-Hur." Later Walsh was taken out and Ramon Novarro replaced him, winning new glory.

Walsh's brother, Raoul, who used to be actor as well as director, was replaced by Warner Baxter in "In Old Arizona" when Walsh lost an eye in an accident. The role brought Baxter back to film success.

And Jean Harlow, from small comedy leads, made the talkie version of "Hell's Angels" because Greta Nissen's accent made her ineligible. Now Jean Harlow not only is an outstanding "camp" but has set a new vogue in screen blonds—the "platinum" kind.

ABOUT CHILDREN

Little children ought to be seen and seldom heard. If at dinner time or tea. Such a thing occurred, I should promptly make a plea. For a merry word.

If they waited until they first were spoken to. As the grown-ups often say. Little ones should do. I should ask them right away. "Children, how are you?"

I don't want them sitting there solemn as can be. Each one rigid in his chair. If I want to see images and statues rare. Art museums are free.

Little children should be seen. And not heard by day! Who could by a thought so mean. Lead the world astray? What a grouch he must have been. Such a thing to say!

Matt Schmidt returned the previous night from a business trip to Milwaukee and Chicago.

Mrs. C. C. Lajka had returned from a visit with friends at Clintonville.

George Maurer returned the preceding day from a week's vacation trip to Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.

Mrs. Mary Nischke had returned to her home after a visit with Oshkosh relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Meyer and Chris Roemer left the previous day for Fond du Lac where they were in attendance at the annual meeting of the German Press association of Wisconsin.

Frank F. Wheeler, 735 Superior-st., left that morning for Cleveland, Ohio, to visit his old home.

A dispatch the other day told of a farmer in Dakota who turned his turkey's loose on the grasshoppers and the hoppers ate the feathers off the turkey. That makes Winsted, Conn., where the nine-legged calves come from, look pretty cheap.

G. B. Shaw regrets that he is 75 years old instead of 18 so that he could go to Russia and grow up with the country. Most young men of 18, however, seem to be fonder of other things than growing up with a country.

A man who speaks 17 languages was married the other day to a woman who speaks 12 languages. It's a pretty safe bet that the 12 languages will get the better play.

At least if those movie censors insist on cutting out scenes they think too hot for the public, they ought not to get sympathy when they develop high blood pressure.

A Texas school teacher preferred one of her pupils to her principal and lost her job. The pupil was 19 and athletic. Yes, education is the hope of the world.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HOW I LOST MY FIRST FOUR MOTHERS

In fifteen years of honest—if I do say so myself—general practice in country and city, private and hospital, I grew reasonably callous, hardened, though I began the argument as tenderhearted as any woman.

However, I am afraid I never did learn how to see the suffering of a child without being seriously upset or distraught as they say in novels and to this day the sacrifice of a young mother anywhere or in any circumstances makes me swearing mad at the conditions I deem responsible for most such fatalities.

The first young mother at whose sacrifice I assisted was a victim of sheer panic. Her physician, a good faithful man with the finest principles, lost his head in a grave emergency and—simply did the wrong thing at the right time. I was administering the anesthetic. When I heard the doctor say what he had done—well, I've often thought about this and debated with myself whether I was right in keeping the silent. On the whole I believe I was right for the mistake could not be corrected and knowledge of it would have caused great unhappiness to many.

The second mother I lost had eclampsia—convulsions superinduced by kidney disease. Inherent dishonesty in the family had a bearing on this fatality, I think. The people were the meanest kind of dead beats that is, they could pay a reasonable doctor bill, but would not until they had it. They preferred to enjoy various luxuries. When the expectant mother realized arrangements must be made she did not go to her own physician but called upon a new one for such care or advice as she thought she required. Not till the eclampsia developed did the family call the regular physician. Perhaps it made no difference, but still I think early and regular urinalysis would have given warning and indicated different treatment, which might have brought the parent through.

The third death was also from eclampsia in a second childbirth. The expectant mother had placed herself under medical direction early and had followed instructions faithfully. She was of Polish parentage, and with the advent of the second baby she listened to the urge of friends who thought it foolish to pay a doctor when a mid-wife could be had at a considerable saving.

The last mother sacrificed was of Swedish parentage and had borne one child without trouble. She and her maiden sisters were all of better than ordinary intelligence. Late in her expectancy she developed an "ulcerated" tooth—that is, abscess around the root of a tooth, alveolar abscess. Physician urged immediate extraction by dentist. Relatives assured her such treatment would be dangerous. She put off the service with the dentist. She put it off a little too long. Systemic infection developed, and pneumonia made further attention to the tooth unnecessary. I believe, but of course I do not know, that prompt extraction or other dental treatment to drain the abscess would have saved the woman's life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Go On In, Girls

Kinly tell me if it will injure my health in any way, now or later, if I go in swimming while . . . (17 Year Old Girl)

Answer—No. On the contrary it is better for your health and happiness, now and later, not to permit the fact that you are a girl to interrupt your usual activities. This policy has been extensively tried out in women's colleges, and it has proved the better policy. The old fogies will gasp and say I'm crazy, but I'm telling you, and I know my hygiene.

High and Dry

What sections of states are most beneficial for one with chronic sinusitis? (M. K.)

Answer—Not to get in bad with the chamber of commerce, I'll say places that are fairly high and fairly dry are best provided you live much out in the sunlight.

Falling Arches

In regard to your exercise for falling arches, I have been advised that such exercise is like adding salt to an open wound . . . (R. S.)

Answer—Sometime a judicious amount of salt is beneficial in the healing of wounds. I repeat that it is foolhardy for anybody to wear arch props of any kind, not excepting your pet brand, sir, without medical advice.

Salted Peanuts

Please advise whether the daily eating of a quarter of a pound of salted peanuts is injurious to health. (Miss R. D. E.)

Answer—I should think that too much salt. Excessive consumption of salt is injurious to health. The peanuts are an excellent nutritious food. Why not take your peanuts fresh roasted instead of salted?

Kry Poisoning

I have poison ivy. Please tell me what will kill it. (J. McD.)

Answer—If you mean you wish to destroy the growing ivy, I am not competent to advise. If you mean you have ivy dermatitis, ask your doctor for a shot of the antitoxin. Photographer's hypo (hyposulphite of soda) is a good local remedy—keep the inflamed area covered with dressings kept constantly wet with a solution of 1/2 ounces of the hypo in the pint of water. The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE Tynmites finally stopped their song. Said Sooty, "Here we move along, let's ask them if they'll sing some more. Their voices sound real good. I simply love fine harmony. That's why this all appeals to me. I'd like to join right in with them. I only wish I could."

The Travel Man said, "Well, why not? It must be that they know a lot of pretty songs. I'll ask them if they'll sing one more. If you can catch on to the tune you all can join in very soon. But when you start your singing, kindly sing and do not roar."

He then turned to one native, who said they would all be glad to do the thing that he requested. Soon their voices filled the air. Then we saw Clowzy, with a smile, said, "I am going to try my luck. If I flat, I don't care."

However, he did very well and And then the others also sang and when the song was over the natives "We're mighty glad you Tynmites tried. Your singing made us happy. That's what singing's usually for."

The Travel Man then said, "Well, we must move along. There's a heap to see. Not far from here there is a place that we can reach and get there quick. A sight's in store that you'll think slick. In fact, I'll tell you what it is—some big banana trees."

"Oh, my, let's hurry," Copsy said. "Bananas grow up overhead and maybe we can climb a tree and pick some." Off they ran! It wasn't long until they found a very pretty stretch of ground. Upon it stood the monstrous trees and nearby was a man.

(Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

(The Tynmites help the banana man in the next story.)

The National Safety Council has ascertained that one-half of all injuries are due to accidents in the home and a large proportion of them are caused by careless house-keeping. Last year 25,000 fatalities and injuries to 5,000,000 men, women and children occurred in the homes of this nation.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—The young and bespectacled senator from Michigan—Arthur Vandenberg of Grand Rapids—after a long time has warred against what he chooses to call "synthetic antiques."

Resident of a city famed for its furniture manufacture, he is concerned that spurious "antiques" are slipping by customs agents into this country in vast quantities.

So it must have been good news to him when he learned the other day that the postoffice department had designated 10 ports only through which foreign mail containing antiques could be cleared.

There are only a few experts capable of swift appraisals, and because they are concentrated at these 10 ports, the postoffice department was moved to such action. Authentic antiques in general—that is articles of artistic merit made prior to 1820—enter the United States duty free.

Refined Fakery

But take it from Senator Vandenberg, "synthetic antiques," especially furniture, get by the customs officials in great quantities.

As nearly as he can figure it, the annual run is some $15,000,000 annually.

"The production of this synthetic furniture in Europe," he says, "has come to be a mass operation. The highest priced wood in France today is wood out of old bridges and old barns, which is sold to antique furniture manufacturers. Old nails are at a premium."

And the senator claims that he has discovered some interesting details of the business of "faking antiques."

One is a little machine which in some respects suggests a dentist's drill, but which is flexible. This machine makes the "worm holes" which subtly testify to antiquity. "It is one of the refinements," he says, "of these deliberate frauds."

Penalty Provided

Vandenberg does not contend that faked antiques are confined entirely to importations. He admits readily that there is "faking" in this country, but his point is:

"None of it cheats American labor, none of it cheats American capital, and none of it undertakes to defraud the treasury of United States."

He made a valiant fight in the last congress to attach a 50 per cent penalty duty to furniture seeking free entry as "antiques" but proving in the judgment of customs experts to be of modern make. Only those articles imported for resale included.

After some two hours of debate, the senate voted him a 25 per cent penalty.

Today's Anniversary

HILL TO CAPTURE

On Aug. 15, 1917, Canadian troops captured Hill 70, dominating the important French coal city of Lens. Hill 70 had been declared by the Germans to be impregnable.

Fighting was terrific in this sector, and the Canadians took positions on a two mile front south and east of the city.

On the same date the United States Food Administration, a $50,000,000 corporation, the purpose of which was to buy and sell wheat for the government, was organized.

Also on this date Herr Von Walldow became food controller in Germany, succeeding von Batocki.

PLAN BALANCES

ITSELF IN AIR
Los Angeles, Cal. — A new type plane which is said to balance itself while in the air, has been tested in California.

In a flight piloted by G. Wilbur Cornelius recently, the automatic elevator of the plane was set at an altitude of 5,300 feet and the control stick was ignored entirely, the course being held with the rudder.

The balancing feature of the plane is in the high-wings, connected to the fuselage by only a single steel tube. This permits them to change their center of lift, according to the air force encountered.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Not infrequently, the man who contributes no more than a sketch or a gag to a show, tries to chisel free tickets for his family and friends throughout the run.

It is refreshing to learn that Boark Bradford is as prudent as he is talented. It was his material that Marc Connelly molded into the 1930 Pulitzer prize play, "The Green Pastures," which has run up 600 performances on Broadway.

Two young New Orleans newspaper men, Charles (P) Dufour and Myles Kehoe, informed Bradford just before they left that charming old town on vacation that they wanted to see the show when they got here.

He told them he would get them in all right.

Unknown to them, instead of writing a request for a pair of passes, Bradford mailed a check to the theater box office for two tickets. Little things like that cause consternation in theatrical circles.

The gentlemen of the press saw the play, but needless to say, the theatre management returned Bradford's money, reminding him that his relations and friends were welcome, gratis.

Annoying, We Imagine

One of John Barrymore's little idiosyncrasies, a leading woman tells me, used to be eating such stuff as limburger cheese sandwiches and onions between scenes in the motion picture studios.

The woman whom Barrymore kissed suffered in silence until one day the lovely Dolores Costello stomped a dairy floor in protest against the mingled aroma of limburger, onions, tobacco and—oh, something else.

Evidently Barrymore change his habits after that. The glittering blonde and the man with

CITY COUNCIL REJECTS BIDS FOR SEWER JOB

Aldermen Vote to Advertise for New Bids, Return- able Aug. 28

Menasha—To fall from a moving truck onto the main street pavement, and escape uninjured, was the experience of Gerald Matern, 3-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Matern, shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Gerald was riding in the cab of a truck driven by his father. He is believed to have accidentally released the latch on the cab door. Although momentarily stunned by the fall, the youngster recovered within a few moments, apparently unhurt, and without a whimper returned to the truck.

Menasha—Rescinding the action taken at a special meeting Tuesday evening, the common council rejected all bids for construction of the Oak and Nicolet sewer, at a special session Friday evening. The clerk was authorized to advertise for new bids, returnable Aug. 28.

Although the aldermen last Tuesday voted to accept the bid of the R. J. Wilson Co. of Appleton, which quoted the lowest price of four cents a foot for the installation of a fifth bid, submitted by John Schiele of Sturgeon Bay, which had been overlooked, was discovered at the city offices on the following day.

Schiele's bid, read at Friday's meeting, was for the installation of 12-inch pipe, 60 cents per foot for six inch risers, $85 for man holes, and $10 per cubic yard for rock excavation. Because the fifth bid had not been considered with the others, Alderman Small's motion to reject all proposals received the unanimous approval of the council members.

In order to insure some progress in the general improvement of Oak street, Alderman Grode of the Third ward suggested that work begin on the new concrete sidewalks immediately. The matter was referred to the street committee and the city engineer.

The installation of the Oak sewer will be made in conjunction with widening and general improvement of the street. Preparatory work on the street widening project is under way, directed by the board of public works, and Peter Kasel, superintendent of streets.

Menasha—With both teams scoreless in the fifth frame, a "break" gave the Banta Publishers a 2 to 0 win over the Carton team in a hard fought Industrial league game on the city park diamond, Friday evening.

Mielke, Banta hurler, drew a pass to first in the fifth inning, and Morgan, the next man up, drove a liner to center field. The ball was a legitimate double, but Brendenick, Carton center fielder, attempted to snare the ball on the fly, booted it, and Mielke and Morgan crossed the plate.

COLD SHOULDER FOR PROPOSAL ON COTTON CROP

Alternate Plans Offered to Board by Georgia, Alabama, Florida

Washington—(AP)—Final rejection today appeared to be in store for the farm board's drastic plan of destroying a third of the cotton crop in an effort to boost the price of the staple.

Four of the fourteen states asked to cooperate have filed objections to the suggestion that every third row of standing cotton be plowed under. A fifth, Texas, the largest producing state whose cooperation was deemed essential for success, appeared in doubt.

Governor Sterling was said yesterday at the board to have agreed to lend his assistance. The Texas chief executive later, however, issued a statement at Houston, denying he favored the board's proposal.

"I notice," he said, "the impression has gotten out that I favor plowing up one-third of this year's cotton crop. This is not the case. However, I did write Chairman Stone of the farm board that I would gladly cooperate with him in his efforts to do the cotton crop over."

"Mr. Stone evidently construed my message to mean that I favored his specific plan. I think it would be just as reasonable to ask the farm board to burn up a part of the cotton they are holding as it is to their crop."

Substitute Proposals

Georgia, Alabama and Florida, who opposed the board's plan, endorsed the idea of reducing the current harvest and offered substitute proposals which were not made public. South Carolina also rejected the plan.

A sixth state, California, asked that it not be considered in the movement because of its small cotton production.

In addressing the plan to 14 governors, the board listed 10 must-agree to make it operative beginning Sept. 1. In return, it agreed to hold its stabilization cotton for one year and urge upon cotton cooperatives the advisability of similar action in regard to their 2,100,000 bales. At least eight governors have informally expressed the opinion the board's suggestion was impractical.

Current blizzard. He was born in Kansas, and spent his childhood in South Carolina, are among those who have presented substitute plans ranging from holding stabilization cotton for five years to resumption of stabilization operations, briefly, their plans provide for the purchase by the board of a substantial part of this year's prospective harvest of 15,550,000 bales on the condition the farmers agree by contract not to plant cotton next year.

Senator Smith presented his plan last winter. At that time it was rejected in a letter signed by Carl Williams, cotton member, which said that purchase of 4,000,000 bales as Smith suggested would not solve the problem. Under its present proposal, however, it is hoped to reduce production.

Meanwhile, the board was attempting to reach an agreement with the directors of the American Cotton Cooperative association on the amount of financing for handling this year's crop. Last year 90 per cent advances were made to farmers.

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
New York — (CPA)—Tammany's chief and deepest striped tiger today is having the swell sort of scrap he has dotted on all his Irish life.

The legislative committee inquiring into New York city's administration summoned him and he responded with an almost alarming meekness.

John F. Curry, who is 55, knows his political battle grounds. He has been pretty constantly on one or another since the turn of the century.

Before that, and after his father brought him from Ireland, he managed to pick up a grammar school education. Later he was a telegraph operator. Whatever the fight, he is always ready for it. He never takes a drink. He limits himself to three glasses a day and lives carefully and quietly on one floor of a brownstone apartment to which he took his bride 26 years ago.

It was about a year after his marriage that he fought his way into a district leadership and so began a slow, fighting progress through Tammany's hierarchy which ended with his selection in 1929 as the hall's leader. The city now pays him $3,669 a year as a retired commissioner of records; and apart from his political activities he has long operated a highly successful insurance agency.

Such pleasures as he finds time for are of a modest sort. He likes baseball, cards, and the invention his sometimes foe, Al Smith, calls the "radio." He dresses usually in dark, sober clothes and tops them out with a derby a black one. His wars have scarcely stooped his tall, spare frame, but they have worn most of the hair off his head, square head and have pinched his mouth into a thin line almost hidden by a grey moustache, although that is clipped close.

Troubled Britain rests no easier these nights since Norman Montagu was reported on the verge of a nervous breakdown. That slender governor of the bank of England for the last 11 years is a living keystone in the nation's financial structure, for all that he has the air and the appearance of a comic Svengali.

Slough-hatted and whiskered like an artist of the quarter, indifferent to the formal attire which has been the garb of British bankers for generations, he has never been directed the vast affairs of the shabby bank in Threadneedle-st with conspicuous success.

Of his success he says... nothing. Year after year he is reported moving from one capital to another on secret missions.

Year after year he ignores reports. After a long conversation with President Hoover one winter afternoon he told palmed interviewers that all the talk had been about the current blizzard. He was born 60 years ago and in 1901, was awarded the D. S. O. for his services in South Africa. A catch in any circle, he is unmarried, and in his leisure hours he is mostly somewhere in his modest London home, or in its considerable gardens. There he walks and digs in his flowerbeds and reads, for especial enjoyment, Kipling.

That all but unprecedented social phenomenon, a law-breaking Rockefeller, has risen in New Haven. John R. Prentice, grandson of the nonagenarian who founded the oil line, has just paid $5 to a judge there. With myriad bathtubs at his disposal, young Prentice chose to bathe, as ranked as a jay-bird, in the reservoir which supplies New Haven with its water.

It was not his first step beyond that pale of orthodoxy beloved of his mother's family. Entering Yale in 1919, with a rich man's social advantages, he cut so many classes he was suspended. A family row followed, whereupon the son went to Boston, got a job the day he was down to his last dime, and returned to Yale a year later and since has worked his way. Now he is close to the end of his studies at the law school.

Despite his lack of ready cash, his academic years have been a long record of brilliance. Tending a university switchboard by night, by day he has won every prize after school ship and prize after prize. In his senior year he was elected to Skull and Bones, in his junior year he made Phi Beta Kappa. He looks like his uncle, John D. Jr., round, owl-like eyes, and his mouth is broad and thick and a little sulky. Romantic rumors are constantly associating his name with that of the niece of the Boston hardware merchant who gave him that needed job. His mother long since reconciled him and his one-time irate father.

Westport, N. Y.—Perhaps Glenna Collett has taught some fine points of golf to her husband or maybe she has been flatterer him by not doing so well as she has on other occasions. Arthur Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Vane, Jr., each had the same score, 57, in a tournament with divisions for both sexes.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS TRAIL TO CHILDREN

Milwaukee (P)—Following a trail of artificial flowers from Minnesota, Mrs. Goldie Carroll and her husband were here today searching for their two children and Mrs. Carroll's mother.

Mrs. Carroll said when she and her husband returned to their Moorhead, Minn., home after a vacation 10 days ago, they learned the children, Sidney, 14, and Dale, 5, had gone with the grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Currier, 61, and Mrs. Carroll's brother. Making inquiry, they said, they followed the children's car through several Wisconsin towns where the children, under the grandmother's guidance, had sold artificial flowers they made. They said it likely the car was headed for Chicago.

WARNING ISSUED BY NATIONAL CLOTHIERS

Chicago (P)—The National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furriers said in a statement today that a survey of the national disclosed only 10 to 15 per cent declines in clothing prices in the current low price period.

The statement, which took the form of an "ultimatum" to the trade, declared what was termed misrepresentation and added:

"The public is being led to believe that certain stores can secure and offer ridiculous values which in fact can not possibly be made available at this time."

Geneva — Although the Japanese catch more fish than any other nation in the world, the Norwegians seem to be the best fishermen. The league of nations dug up the statistics.

Teach Child To Overlook Petty Things

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Goodness, Aunt Ellen, these things are awful. How do you stand them?"

Aunt Ellen rocked placidly in her chair and replied as placidly, "I don't mind them at all. They never bother me."

"I should think they would about drive you crazy. I've done nothing but slap, slap since I came out."

"So I noticed," said Aunt Ellen, still rocking, still placid.

"Don't they bite you, Aunt Ellen?"

"Well, really, I can't say. Come to think of it, they may now and then. I just don't mind them."

"Ouch. M-m-m-m. They do bite. I'll be all over bites tomorrow. They make awful marks on me. Do they leave scars Aunt Ellen?"

"Leave scars? What are you talking about? To hear you talk one would think that you were being cut to pieces or something. A mosquito won't hurt you if you forget about it."

"I'd like to know how anybody could forget about it with these things singing in your ears and taking a bite out of you every few minutes. All I do is slap and scratch."

"And complain," put in Aunt Ellen as placid as ever. "You see you keep your thought on the mosquito. Every time you hear one sing you rally to fight it. You are already bitten. You feel the bump and the burning and you are already scratching when the mosquito alights. I'm sitting on the same porch but the mosquitoes are not bothering me."

"There's one now on your arm. He's biting. There you got him."

"I kill them if I see them or feel them in time. But I don't think about them unless I have to and I forget about them as soon as I can. That helps a great deal. I imagine if there were a great many of them—"

"Many. There's a million or two."

"When I first lived here, my dear, there were mosquitoes. Not the scaterling few that are here now, but clouds of them. When I tried to work the garden they rested on my arms like a gray cloud and I would wipe them off my arms just as I might wipe away cobwebs. I had to work. I had to go on mosquitoes or no mosquitoes. Soon I decided that mosquitoes could not bite me. I told them so. I told myself so. I kept telling myself that these things could not trouble me. And before I knew it they weren't bothering me at all. You can do that with almost anything that bothers you if you try. John drained the meadows and cut down the weeds and the pests vanished. But I shut them out of my mind first and you don't know how happy I am that I did. I learned to close out a good many pestering things that way."

"How did you do it? Just by saying over and over, 'You can't bite me. You can't bite me.'"

"Not quite, but something like that. I meant they should not bite me. I meant to shut troublesome petty things out of my life. Whenever they come I think of something pleasant, something I hope to do. That soon settles the pests. I will never get to be perfect at it but I do manage to help myself a good deal. They haven't bothered you much these past few minutes, have they? I thought not. Just direct your attention somewhere else and never scratch them."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

School starts next month and of course you want your child to make the best possible progress. But remember that school books and school environments are arranged for healthy eyes. The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

THERE was such genuine warmth and gladness in Jean's voice and eyes that Sue felt herself going out to him in sudden, swift gratitude. It wasn't romantic interest this Jean offered. It was a brotherly, consoling type. She had been lonesome for it.

"I'll be out of this joint in about a week," Jean explained. "Then I have to recuperate for another two weeks and then things start for a while after that. Funny where a ride can lead, isn't it?"

"So I'm making plans. The family's got a lodge along a lake, a peach of a place for a house party. I'm going to open it and throw open. It won't hurt me. I can be careful. And we need your help."

"Grand!" Sue agreed enthusiastically. "But you can't have it for a month, anyway. You'll find that your legs aren't as strong as they used to be."

"I suppose so. But...well, a month then," he agreed. "For three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Anyone who can go ahead of time is welcome. An old couple are caretakers and they have a couple of granddaughters who are the maids and there's a cook in the bargain. How does it hit you?"

"Oh, it's going to be lovely," Sue agreed. She was thinking that Jack would probably be back by that time. She had been on another house party with him one time... a house party which had ended in her kidnapping. Now she would have a lovely, glamorous, perfect one!

Her resentment against Barbara disappeared, swept away by the picture of the lodge nestled at the edge of a cool lake.

Sue was happier as she went roaming down the street. Everything would straighten out, she told herself. After all, she had Jack and she had a job.

She remembered that she might find a letter from him and walked faster. Then, purposely, she slowed down. She made herself go to dinner before she went home, she would have a longer time to enjoy the anticipation of the letter, in case it didn't come. She could look forward to finding it.

But if she went home and it wasn't there, she would have to go to dinner without anything to look forward to.

Still... She decided to go home first. Dr. Barnes was just going in the doorway as she came along. He smiled and spoke and made some remark about the weather. He had been so much nicer since Sue had taken the position in his office. He no longer practiced his drawled-out sarcasm.

"When people are hurting you, if you've lost your balance, you hurt somebody else. That's what I'm doing. I apologize if I ran by-wire," he had told Sue.

"Oh, that's all right; forget it," she had answered.

She looked at the letters on the table. There was no envelope and nothing in Jack's sweeping hand. But she found a letter from Corinne.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

PROBLEM OF ONE GIRL AND TWO MEN—UNFAIR FAMILY ATTITUDE

Dear Virginia Vane: Here is the problem: H. and A. are interested in the same girl. H. drinks, smokes, has many bad habits. A. tries to lead a straight life. For some time the girl was in love with A. and then he became aware that she was growing interested in H. He accused her of this and she did not deny it. Therefore he let her go because he cared for her enough to want to see them happy. Now she is going with H. all the time although she was before the kind of girl who would not stand smoking or drinking. Did A. do right to let her go when he knew what type of man H. was? Should he have tried to hold her? Will she return to him when she finds out about H.?

B. B. If the damsel wanted to go, A. couldn't have held her, no matter how hard he tried. He could not have forced her to be in love with him if she were already falling for someone else. It would have been wrong of him to have tried to hold her to any promise she'd made him, while she thought she was in love with him.

And if he'd told her a few facts about H., he might have driven her even more surely in the direction of her new love. No girl ever forgives the man who tells her unkind stories about her latest crush, no matter how good the intentions of her informant.

The point is that the girl must decide for herself whether she prefers a man of H.'s character or not. No use trying to protect her. She's got to discover for herself what his habits are. If she finds that she is attracted to him, and can care for him in spite of the fact that his behavior is against all her principles, then she's nothing A. can do to help himself. He's best her.

But there is a perfectly good chance that she's experiencing a temporary attraction for H. which will die a hard death when she finds out he's not her idea of a nice boy. Much depends on how strong her principles are. She must learn a few lessons before she can decide with whom she's really in love. And if this experience teaches her to love A. again, her feeling can be depended on, more than ever before. Therefore A. is the best thing in letting her go. She must have some knowledge of herself, before she can know whether she's capable of real love or not.

Face The Family MAUD: It would seem that a girl of twenty-one might be permitted to see the man of her choice. What do you think?

GIVE ILLUSION OF BIG EYES BY SHADOWING

BY ALICIA HART

Eye make-up changes with the one-eye view of the mode that new hats are giving the eye.

If you are to be gazed upon from the profile, it is obvious that the outer corners of your eyes are important.

Well, if they are make-up so they will be most attractive. With the features highlighted with the hat sweeping off your face, you must be mighty careful how you apply eyelid shadowing. Smooth it out so that there is a slightly darker shadow on the outside of the eyelid. This gives you the appearance of wide-apart, big eyes.

Extending Brows There is a trick you can do, if you have skill, that is most effective. Right at the corner of the eye, prolong it by adding a slight line of color. It should exactly match your eyelid shadowing. Or it will show. But if you can manage to do it skillfully enough so you won't really see a definite line, there will be a feeling of a well-molded eye there that is most charming.

Eyebrows need much the same extension at the outer corners. It is simpler with eyebrows. But quite as important that they don't show. Simply rub the eyebrow pencil line in carefully so its color is left but its mark is gone. That helps you emphasize the clearest impact of your face. And you must try to get this idea of a beautifully sculpted face, if you want to be intriguingly lovely, under the new hats.

There is something inconsistent in using too heavy mascara with the elegant new hats. They seem to call for such fineness in make-up that obvious eyelashes are just not right. If you can bend your eyes so that they don't look bearded it's all right. But when you do, it's all right.

Eyelash coloring is much more suited to new styles. Apply it with a little brush made for that purpose. Get the same general tone as your eyelashes themselves. Don't try to change the shade too much or the effect will not be so good.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

If a recipe calls for sour milk and none is available, add 2 tablespoons of vinegar to one cup of sweet milk. Let stand for 3 minutes and the milk will sour.

To remove dents from furniture dampen the brush or dent with warm water. Fold a piece of brown paper 5 or 6 times and soak it (folded paper) in warm water. Lay the moistened but not dripping wet paper over the dent and on top, a paper flat iron (not a hot one), letting it remain long enough to cause evaporation of water or until dent is raised even with rest of finished surface. Repeat process if necessary.

In boiling vegetables which take a long time to cook, like butter beans or string beans, put a pinch of soda in cooking water. It will save gas if cooked on a gas stove. (Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Newspapers.)

DROUGHT RELIEF BIG NEED IN MIDWEST AREA

Des Moines, Iowa—(P)—While preparing Friday to conclude a survey of crop conditions in midwest states, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Hyde said that drought relief, rather than action against the grasshopper plague, is now the primary concern of the federal government.

Iowa, he said, has suffered less than nearby states from drought damage. He expressed the belief that the grasshopper invasion in western Iowa and South Dakota is now under control.

The problem in Iowa, the secretary believes, is to prevent a larger infestation of the hoppers next spring.

His purpose in the present survey, he said, was to investigate those sections in North and South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota and Iowa, which face serious crop shortages, and to determine to some extent which will require help this winter.

BOMBING PLANES FAIL TO SINK OLD STEAMER

Norfolk, Va.—(P)—An hour of concentrated attack Friday from a squadron of army bombing planes from Langley field failed to sink the ancient shipping board steamer Mount Shasta used as a target off the Virginia coast.

Rain began to fall and the bombers turned back to Langley field. Another attempt to sink the Mount Shasta probably will be made tomorrow.

The target ship was said in radio reports to have developed a slight list, but otherwise appeared not to be seriously damaged. It was reported there no direct hits except for the landing of one 100 pound bomb just off the bridge.

FASTEST WAR PLANES

London—England lays claim to having the fastest fighting planes in the world. The speed of this country's fighting craft has been increased 30 to 50 miles an hour during the past year. One of the fastest planes of the Royal Air Force is the Hawker "Fury," a tiny craft to be used as an "interceptor fighter" for defensive operation about London.

The WORLD of BRIDGE

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

AVOID TENACE OPENINGS

THERE is no principle of the Modern Theory of Leads less generally understood than the principle governing waiting leads against a notrump declaration. For years a tradition handed down from the days of Whist has been accepted by Bridge players so generally that it has been stated in the axiomatic form "Always lead fourth best of your longest and a notrump."

strongest suit." Like many other uses of the word "always," it is entirely incorrect. "Always" is a word to be used with extreme caution, as is its antithesis "never." These two words have cost Bridge players more losses at the table than can easily be computed.

If you have strong suits to lead, which can be established quickly, and your hand contains a re-entrant, you must make the long cards of that suit, then the direct frontal attack is to be preferred. The only question there involved is whether the number of tricks you can establish is sufficient to defeat the contract. If it is and you can get in to make them, after the adverse stopper has been driven out, then all is well, but to apply such tactics when the honors in your hand are held in tenace position is sheer stupidity. It is quite likely to be the one way of assuring the Declarer of making his game. A tenace in Contract is the holding of honors not in sequence, although the term can be made to cover cards with many intervening between them. Particularly, however, we speak of such combinations as the A Q K J, Q 10 as tenace holdings and such holdings, when they are at the top of our longest suits, should not be led away from, either at notrump or at a suit declaration. It was to cover just such situations that I took up the study of Whist leads, as applied to Contract and Auction. As a result, for years I have been advocating and using in my own play waiting leads when holding tenace combinations in my strong suits.

A waiting lead is the lead of a worthless short suit and its purpose is to surrender the lead and permit the cards in tenace situation to be led up to rather than away from.

Take the hand below, recently played in a Duplicate Contract tournament, apply illustrates the value of the waiting lead.

Both sides vulnerable South—Dealer

♠ A Q 7 2 ♣ 7 6 5 ♢ A 7 6 ♣ A 8 4

♠ 10 6 4 ♣ N ♣ K 9 8 ♠ A J 8 4 ♣ W ♣ E ♣ K Q J 5 ♠ Q 10 6 5 ♣ S ♣ 9 7 3 2

The bidding: ♠ 3 5 3 ♣ K Q 10 3 ♠ 10 4 3 ♣ K J

South West North East Pass Pass 1A(1) Pass Pass Pass 2NT(3) Pass Pass 3NT(4) Pass Pass Pass

1—North is amply strong for his bid of one spade, which is to be preferred to a bid of notrump, as it is calculated better to reveal the strength and weakness of the other hands around the table.

2—South, holding 2 honor-tricks, takes out with one notrump rather than two hearts because the heart suit is of only four cards in length and partner will ordinarily assume a suit of five cards for a bid of two under these conditions.

3—North's hand is of balanced distribution and his partner's bid has assured him that the combined hands total at least 5 honor-tricks. He, therefore, bids two notrump. South has more than 12 honor-tricks which was not accounted for by his bid of one notrump. Encouraged by North's Third Hand Opening and later Raise, South now bids for game.

The Play The old school would have dictated the Opening of the heart four, the fourth best card of West's longest and strongest suit. This lead would be the equivalent to presenting game to South as it makes it certain that South will win at least 2 heart tricks. As the cards lie, 3 spade tricks are assured, as well as 3 clubs and 2 diamonds if South is permitted to develop the hand according to his own line. West, however, has a much better lead and that is the lead of the diamond 8, a waiting lead which preserves his tenace position in both hearts and clubs until such time as these suits are led by other players. In the actual game, West selected this card as his Opening. The Declarer played a low card from the Dummy and East won with the diamond Knave. East now would have been playing the Declarer's game to have returned his partner's Opening lead as he can easily see from the cards in his own hand and those in sight in the Dummy that West had chosen his lead because his holdings in other suits were such that a lead toward his strength would be more beneficial than a lead away from it. Aided by the information of the waiting lead and the entire lack of strength in the heart suit shown in the Dummy, East now led the heart 9 and the defeat of the contract was assured. No matter how played, the Declarer can now make only 1 trick in the heart suit. Thus his contract of three notrump was defeated, even although quite properly bid.

On hands where the honor strength is little if any more than necessary to produce game, the wise selection of the Opening lead quite frequently will result in the defeat of the contract. The wooden acceptance of outworn theories, sound enough in their original setting and applied to the game for which they were developed, most frequently will result in defeat.

Contract is a modern game. It is a modern game in its bidding. Played at its best it is also a modern game in the selection of the suit and card to be led.

Today's Pointer TWO-BIDS WITH A PART-SCORE

With a part-score of 40 or 60, an Opening two-bid in a major or minor, respectively, is not a Forcing bid but merely a game bid. In rare cases where you hold a powerful hand and yet are prevented, because of a part-score, from making a Forcing two-bid: Open with a higher bid than a game contract when holding a powerful hand and a strong trump suit. The number of tricks so overbid for a Slam try can be graduated according to the strength of the hand.

Open with a bid of two notrump when holding a powerful hand but lacking a strong trump suit (distribution 4-4-3-2, 4-3-3-3 or 5-3-3-2.)

Partner cannot help but infer a hand of unusual strength and assume a possible Slam.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of this newspaper. ENCLOSE A TWO-CENT STAMPED SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

PLAN HORSE PULLING CONTESTS AT FAIR

Prizes to Be Given to Best Pullers at Hortonville Event

There will be a horse pulling contest at the Hortonville fair at 2 o'clock on Saturday, Sept. 5. The contest includes a class for teams weighing under 3,000 pounds and one for those weighing 3,000 or over. Teams are to report with their certified stripped weights at the opening of the contest.

Aside from the regular prizes for first, second, and third in each class, a special prize of $25 is offered for any team winning a contest at a new high state record and $50 for winning a contest at a new high world record, in force at the hour of the contest.

The present state record is 2,900 pounds for the light class and 3,225 pounds for the heavy class. The present world record is 3,150 pounds for the light class and 3,575 pounds for the heavy class. This means the equivalent of pulling these weights 273 feet straight up out of a well.

A pull of 3,000 pounds on the tractive dynamometer of the agricultural engineering department is the equivalent of starting a load of 20,000 pounds on concrete pavement or of pulling six 14-inch pipes 6 inches deep in a moist clay loam soil.

The dynamometer furnishes a "live" load on which to pull and the teams are given an opportunity to do their best without hurting themselves. A driver, using his head, helps to get the most out of his team.

COFFEE FRESHNESS

The most important thing in having good coffee is to have it fresh. No can or package of any kind will keep the coffee from getting stale. The oil in the coffee will get rancid making it really unfit to drink.

The only sure way to get fresh coffee is to have it delivered to you by a good reliable Coffee Company in your home town.

Coffee purchased this way just cannot be stale as their coffee is roasted absolutely fresh every few days.

No store except a Tea & Coffee Company can give you fresh coffee all the time for the reason that it is ordered and received every few days.

Think this over when you are buying coffee. For the good of your heart do not drink stale coffee.

KAW SLUGGERS AT GREEN BAY IN SUNDAY TILT

Kaukauna Nine Seeks Win to Practically Cinch
League Pennant

Kaukauna—Meeting their jinx in Fox river valley league games, the leading Kaukauna baseball nine will go to Green Bay to clash Sunday afternoon with Joe Clements' Green Bay baseball team. The Kaukauna team will attempt to prove its superiority in this last engagement of the two teams, and will try to split the four game series of this season by winning.

Kaukauna baseball fans are expected to flock to the game by the hundred and an attempt to arouse interest in the game is believed to be the reason for an article in a Green Bay newspaper Wednesday, stating that Michelson, sensational Kaw hurler, was being watched for doctoring the ball. An incident relative to ball doctoring supposed to have happened at Wisconsin Rapids was not noticed by any of the Kaukauna people attending the game, it is said.

Marty Lamers, who has managed the squad to its place on top of the league ladder, will lead the team on the Green Bay diamond with only one thought, and that of winning in order to clinch the 1931 pennant. All players have their eye on the bunting, as it would be the first pennant to come to Kaukauna in a long time. If the locals take Sunday's game it will almost cinch the title, as only three games will be left to play. Lamers will start the usual battery of Michelson and Wenzel, with Collins, Lamers, Prange, and Phillips making up the rest of the infield. The outfield will remain intact with Les Smith in left, Vils in center, and Ray Smith in right field. Richard "Red" Smith, whose hat helped to bring victory in the second game of a double header at Wisconsin Rapids last Sunday, may play in right field.

For Green Bay, Brindza or Molenda will pitch to Krembs; Zuidmulder being at first; King at second, Koral at short, and Simmons, a newcomer, at third. In the outfield Becker, Wall and Dave Zuidmulder will watch fly balls.

MORE PHEASANTS TO BE PUT ON PRESERVE

Weather Conditions Make It Difficult for Young Birds to Mature

Kaukauna—Although no pheasants were hatched here this season, the preserve here this season, about 20 of the pheasants will be placed soon, according to Louis Miller, head of the league. The preserve was started with about 200 pheasants in 1929 by the Isaac Walton league. Another flock of 23 was added a short time later, purchased from the Fish Creek preserve.

Again, in July, 1930, the league purchased another flock of 40, and for their interest in the birds and the care of them in the winter the state conservation commission presented the chapter with another flock of 40 in 1930.

Weather conditions are believed responsible for the poor hatching season this year. Very few young birds were raised.

The pheasants are fed by the league throughout the winter, and have become quite tame, coming up to the back yards of people living close to the preserve. However, no trouble has been experienced with persons molesting the birds. A fine is imposed for killing or wounding the birds.

"Tramp" Ad Brings Protest From Post-Crescent Reader

From the Lost and Found department of the Post-Crescent's Classified advertising page of Aug. 10: MAN'S WATCH—An old tramp found and left at this office a 15-1 Bulova wrist watch, value $31.50. Owner please call and pay expenses, and leave something for the old scarecrow who found your watch. Apply Post-Crescent office.

From a reader to the Post-Crescent:

Gentlemen—Inclosed you will find an advertisement from this evening's paper. I wonder if the writer of the advertisement considered it humorous to refer to an honorable old man, as a scarecrow, who would go to the trouble of turning over a watch that he found. Can you imagine how the finder of the watch must feel upon reading the advertisement and finding himself referred to in this way?

It would be well for the young writer (I believe he must be young and so perhaps can be excused for his rudeness, as with age comes better judgment and respect for one's fellow-men) to remember that a cloak of honesty is far superior to fine raiment.

Sincerely yours,
A Subscriber.

Dear Subscriber: Thank you for your letter, for we know it was written in a generous spirit that likes to see fair play. The fact is, "the old scarecrow" himself wrote that little ad, just as it appeared in the paper. He was also referred to as "an old tramp," but the characterization is his own, not ours.

Last month he came to the editorial office of this paper. Confessing himself "down and out," he offered for sale several stories on the "jungle" of the hoboes. Perhaps you read them. Not so very long ago he had a good position as a landscape gardener. Then came the business depression; his employer suffered reverses, and he was out of a job.

Sixty-nine years and utter poverty are too heavy a load for most men's shoulders, but not for his. There is a twinkle in his eyes, and you have read his ad, a sort of proud humility in his heart, which will not let him pretend to be more than his visible condition indicates. The handicap of many years, in the bitter competition for the right to work and live, was too great to conquer in the city where he was stranded. He had to seek elsewhere, but he had no funds for traveling expenses. There was only one way—hobodom and the jungle. He followed it. In the various cities along the way he stopped at newspaper offices to sell his articles about the life of a tramp.

"I still can hope," he told us in the office with a smile that had more gaiety than wistfulness. Since he felt that his enforced life in the jungles might throw doubt upon his own integrity, he protested his honesty.

Several days later he came back to the office with the watch, and penned the advertisement which brought that protest from you, Subscriber.

"I'm working now," he announced with pride. "I found this watch. I don't like to ask for a reward for being honest, but when a man's on the rocks he just can't be too nice about such things, can he?"

That's the story behind the little ad, Subscriber. Truly, as you say, a cloak of honesty is far superior to fine raiment, and you might have added, "a blithe and gallant spirit....to great riches."

Learn what a difference six cylinders make in smoothness

quietness
flexibility
handling ease
riding comfort
dependability
economy
long life

Step out of any other low-priced car, step into a Chevrolet, and you'll learn what a difference six cylinders make.

"Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. For six-cylinder smoothness is built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only part of your six-cylinder experience. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire the driver or passengers. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And response is more positive, performance more elastic. A six is much easier to handle!

And particularly, if you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running smoothly and steadily, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

You owe it to yourself—to see and drive a Chevrolet today. And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the powerful Chevrolet Six!

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from... $475 to $675
All prices f.o.b. Flint, Michigan, special equipment extra. Low delivered prices and easy C. M. & C. terms.

NAVARRO HAS ROLE IN "SON OF INDIA"

Stirring Events Happen in India and Russia, Says Star-actor

India and Russia are the two greatest sources for dramatic writers in the world today, in the opinion of Ramon Navarro, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film star, whose newest picture, "Son of India," will be shown at the Midland Show tonight and Sunday only at the Fox Theatre.

This may be a little too close to direct advertising," said Navarro, "when it is considered that I am now appearing in a picture laid in India, but I stick by the statement.

Tremendous stirring events are happening daily in both India and Russia. They are more in the world's eye than any other countries. Strange things are happening in both places...and they provide fertile fields for any man or woman with a creative mind.

In the background of "Son of India" is the age-old question, "Should a white woman marry a man of another race? How a Hindu Prince and a American Girl solve their problem, makes the story an extremely good piece of motion picture merchandise.

"Son of India" was directed by Jacques Feyder, who recently produced "Daybreak."

Director Feyder chose to interpret his various roles such well known personalities as Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Madge Evans, the Broadway stage star and Mitchell Lewis.

CHEVALIER PLAYS IN ANOTHER HIT

Art Specialists Endow French Actor With Romantic Idea

A tremendous combination of acting talent and music making magic have been woven into a thrilling and joyous motion picture, entertainment, "The Smiling Lieutenant," comes to the Fox Theatre for a 3 days engagement starting Monday.

Two gorgeous leading ladies, the brunette Claudette Colbert, the blonde Miriam Hopkins, keep things lively for the smiling Frenchman, whose voice recently given to the thrilling radio audience, will have full opportunity to express his personality in song in "The Smiling Lieutenant." Charlie Ruggles, the joyous inebriate of a score of film hits, gives of his laugh making talents in this new picture.

The story deals with a sprightly Lieutenant of the guards, madly in love with a charming cabaret entertainer, for whom he is willing to sacrifice the joys of bachelorhood. Before he can accomplish his purpose however, he is snatched up by a princess who mistakes his smile for a proposal, and forces him into unwilling matrimony.

Into this humorous, yet sincere, love story, Chevalier has woven his inimitable personality, emphasizing his joy in the romance in song.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "LEO"

If August 16th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:10 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., and from 3 p. m. to 6:10 p. m. The only danger hours are from 7:15 p. m. to 9:50 p. m.

Much care and restraint must be exercised by you on August 16th, so the Stars say, to avoid friction and differences. The atmosphere will be very unsettled, and unexpected squalls will occur in the home and in social circles—especially in the evening; only self-control will calm the troubled waters.

A child born on this August 16th will be shrewd, and must be taught the danger of becoming cunning. It will be stubborn, and when forced to yield, will do so with bad grace. It will be fond of reading and travel, and apt in the formation of friendships. More indifferent than affectionate.

You, if born on August 16th, are fair-minded, extremely positive, and inclined to become bitter under opposition. In so far as the affairs of others are concerned, you have a judicial mind; in so far as your own affairs are concerned, you have a one-track mind. Your ideas are, at times, extreme, and when others cannot see eye to eye with you, resentment is quickly displayed by you.

An unerring judge of character and motives, you do not allow others to impose on you. Your intuition is a valuable asset. You are intelligent, without being intellectual, and are practical. Study or research do not appeal to you very strongly, and although clever, you are superficially, and not fundamentally, so. You are not very communicative, and know how to keep your own counsel. A bolsterous sense of humor characterizes you, and popular among your many friends and acquaintances, you will be happy in your home life.

The opposite sex will not worry you very much, until such time as the one destined to be your mate makes his or her appearance. "When this happens, you will try to repel the passion when it seems to be coming your way. You will finally yield, though, and your love will be all the stronger for having, at first, been denied.

Yacht Club Cruise Draws New York's Social Elite

BY JANE EADS

New York—(P)—Narragansett waters stirred with the arrival and departure Thursday of numerous bright and shiny sloops and schooners flying the flags of their society owners, participants in the New York Yacht club cruise.

At 9 o'clock Thursday morning the craft weighed anchor, unfurled their white wings and put out for Provincetown, Marblehead and Vineyard sound on their annual cruise which ends Aug. 22 with the King's cup race at Newport.

Entered in the cruise are Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville of the H. F. Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor on the Falcon, Major General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt on the Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. Junius Morgan on the Shuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon K. Thorne on the Undine, William H. Vanderbilt on the Vagrant, Mr. and Mrs. William Greenough on the Ventura, Commodore W. W. Aldrich of the New York Yacht club, Mr. and Mrs. Toth on the E. Tod on the Thistle, and Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Lippincott on the Firefly.

A large dinner will be given tonight for the flag officers of the fleet by Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt. Commodore William T. Aldrich of the Eastern Yacht club, brother of the commodore of the New York Yacht club, was a guest in the harbor during the week.

NAPTHA SPIRITS IS SUBJECT TO GAS TAX

Madison—(P)—Oleum spirits, Standard solvents, Napoleon spirits and other naphthas are subject to the payment of the motor vehicle fuel tax, H. H. Naujoks, an assistant attorney general, has informed Solomon Levitan, state treasurer.

An opinion by J. E. Messerschmidt, an assistant attorney general, to T. R. C. Trembath, district attorney at Hurley, says expense accounts for travel of the county nurse must be presented to the county board before the clerk issues an order upon the county treasurer for payment.

Provisions of the statutes requiring county boards to fix rewards for killing of certain animals is mandatory and not discretionary with the county to offer rewards, Mr. Messerschmidt has informed James P. Cullen, Crawford co. district attorney.

VISITORS MUST GO TO CHURCH

Glasgow—(P)—If you ever visit the island of Skye, off the west coast of Scotland, prepare to go to church on Sundays or your visit will be very short.

The islanders are strict Sabbatarians and have ruled that either visitors attend Sunday services or no lodgings will be granted them.

The question of Sunday observance was brought into the limelight last summer when Sunday excursions were run by the railway company to the island despite repeated protests of the natives. The islanders, on threatened boycott of the railway, won, and this year there are no excursions to Skye.

Services on the island generally last at least two hours, one hour for a sermon in English and one for a sermon in Gaelic. It is compulsory that church members remain for both sermons.

MOON of DELIGHT

by Margaret Bell Houston

SYNOPSIS: Nelly Belaise, hostess to the Marquessa Cabrera, is careless with jewelry. So says Madame Fouché, who has come to the Belaise home in Biloxi with her son, Adrian. The marquessa exults at this information—useful to Jason Divitt, who had hired her to chaperone Juanita Basara, alias Senorita Flores—now Nelly's guest. The senorita, she tells Madame Fouché and Nelly, is engaged to a Spanish nobleman. Juanita, meanwhile, knowing nothing of the robbery scheme, is assailed by mysterious fears vaguely underlying her connection with Divitt's gambling house. Mrs. Belaise's grandson, Kirk, in love with the girl, does not understand her mood and misunderstands when she appears to seek Adrian's company. But at a breakfast for two Kirk sees her drawn to him.

Chapter 23
HAPPINESS FOR KIRK
 JUANITA'S hand, lying beside her plate, felt Kirk's hand cover it. Kirk's hand was warm and sure and firm. She did not move. "Juanita," he said, his voice seeming to move along her veins into her heart. "Juanita, look at me." She felt the tears in her eyes, but she looked at him. "Juanita?" Kirk was at her side. "Juanita, darling—what is it?" She had risen, stood dazedly. The thing was close like a black pall. Kirk's arms were closer still. Kirk's kiss was on her eyes, her brow, her mouth.

"Darling..." Kirk's whisper. "Nothing shall make you sad. Nothing shall hurt you." Kirk's whisper, moving along her veins, into her heart. Her hand touched his face, as if to make sure that she did not dream, moved along his forehead, pushed back his hair. She thought, "At last I have done that!" as if it had been her wish. "You blessed child!" said Kirk, kissing her again. Her arm went around his neck. The black thing with its waiting pall slunk away. Her face was against Kirk's breast, but she knew that the sun had come up out of the sea, was gliding the garden.

Kirk did not leave at six o'clock. At seven he came up to Nelly's room while she was having her coffee. "And why are we not half way to New Orleans?" enquired Nelly. "Or did we go last night and get back while Juanita was singing to 'darian'?"

Kirk smiled. He was big with his news, and he sat down on the foot of the bed, facing Nelly. "Juanita and I are..." he said. Nelly's eyes rounded over the edge of her cup, as he had known they would. "Since when?" she asked. "Since about five-forty-five. She had breakfast with me. Had to run back to her room for fear the marquessa would miss her, and I came to tell you." "Kiss me, Kirk," said Nelly. "I hope you'll be happy." "You sound a little vague," answered, kissing her cheek. "I'm not vague at all. I'm just dazed. I didn't expect—"

"You knew I was in love with her."

Nelly picked up the paper again, but her thoughts wandered. Lorenza came in a take the tray. "Give me my orchid's perfume," said Nelly. "And fix my hair." And when Lorenza had obeyed to both their satisfactions. "Ask Senorita Flores to come in," said Nelly.

Can Juanita face Nelly? Tomorrow Adrian waits for Kirk, with important news.

Fords Battle To Remain In Fox River Valley League Race

MEET RAPIDS IN SEASON'S CRUCIAL GAME

Kaws Seek to Cinch Pennant at Bay; Kimberly Plays Shawano

VALLEY LEAGUE
Kaukauna	12 4 .750
Appleton	10 6 .625
Wisconsin Rapids	9 6 .600
Green Bay	9 7 .567
Kimberly	4 11 .262
Shawano	3 13 .182

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Kaukauna at Green Bay.
Appleton at Wisconsin Rapids.
Shawano at Kimberly.

THE question of whether Appleton or Wisconsin Rapids will be eliminated from further consideration in the Fox River Valley Baseball league race will be decided tomorrow afternoon when the two teams clash at the Rapids.

Appleton is in second place in league standings with the Rapids third. Defeat for the Appleton club will dump it far enough into the depths to eliminate all chances of coming to the front. The Rapids on the other hand is strong enough so that, with a win over Appleton, it must come back to the top if the Kaws should falter.

Last week Appleton got back among league leaders by beating Kimberly here while the Rapids was taking two socks on the chin from the Kaukauna crowd. The games put the Rapids into third position and Appleton one game above.

Advance dope gives the Rapids the edge Sunday. "The team" has beaten the Kaws twice this season with Lefty Eastling doing the work. The one win for the Kaws came with Biot trying to fool the team.

Eastling is slated to try for his third win over Appleton tomorrow and he will be opposed by Lefty Behr. The two southpaws should make it a real battle from a hurling standpoint if Rapids bats aren't too potent. Murphy will catch for Appleton and McClain for the Rapids.

No changes in the Appleton lineup have been announced but rumor has it Sonny Towner will return to second base. Donegan has been finding well enough in recent games but Towner was clubbed in his last game. Baldy Eggert should be at first base with George Weisgerber at short and Joe Shields at third. In the outfield the best bet looks like "Boozie" Bowers, Len Smith and Van Wyck.

For the Rapids Judnick will work at first base, Sandrin at second, Johnny Kuenn at short and Bromley at third. In the garden Graber caught at left, Hildebeck in right and Tubby Brandt in left.

Kaukauna will make its final appearance in Green Bay. The league leaders have the gonfalon right within their grasp but a win by the Green Sox will change the complexion of the flag hunt. Michaelson, who has won eight straight games for the Kaws will take the slab against Green Bay with Charley Wenner receiving. Either Bo Molenda or Breezy Brindza is slated to work for Joe Cusumans clan.

Shawano will exhibit its baseball wares in Kimberly while the Indians have high hopes of taking a fall out of the Papermakers as Poca's crew isn't very fond of southpaw hurling. Left Schaefer has been showing lots of class on the slab for Shawano and he will be on the firing line with Mel Hoffman in reserve. If the Papermakers are thrown for a loss, they will only be a half game out of last place, now occupied by the Indians.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

McGraw Strengthens His Outfield For 1932 Race

BY JOHN B. FOSTER

NEW YORK (CPA)—The New York Giants go into their last home series with the western league clubs with a patched up outfield, all indications are that manager John McGraw, their manager, has set in motion the necessary machinery to plug this gap for the pennant race next year.

The Giants have obtained Leonard Koenekne, an Indianapolis outfielder for 1932. He is one of the better outfielders of the American association. His batting percentage in that circuit is about .337, and that shows clear the decks for about .350 in major league company.

The Giants have been fighting a stiff battle this year with an outfield that is not consistent enough. Rumors have been current for some time that Harris' contract at Detroit would not be renewed. Today's report here indicated strongly that his successor would be Bresnahan, who is at present coach of the Tigers. Bresnahan is one of the veterans of the game and as catcher for the New York Giants for many years gained a reputation second only to that of the immortal Buck Ewing. After leaving the Giants he managed the St. Louis Cardinals, but without marked success.

CHARLES COMISKEY AT 72 STILL HOPES FOR PENNANT WINNER

Old Roman Celebrates Today; Has Been in Baseball 54 Years

CHICAGO (CP)—Charles Albert Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, today observed his seventy-second birthday, still hopeful that his club will again become a contender for the American league championship.

The old Roman has been trying to rebuild the organization shattered by the scandal that followed the 1919 world series, and has met disappointment after disappointment without relaxing his efforts to produce another winner. His health has kept him from the actual battle ground except for rare visits, for several years.

He did not expect a championship club this season, but the 1931 south-side representative has been one of his biggest disappointments. The White Sox were expected to land in the first division, or come close to it, chiefly through an excellent pitching staff. Injuries, however, almost wrecked the club and until the last ten days, only four pitchers were able to take their turn. Ted Lyons, who won 22 games last season, suffered an arm injury that has kept him out of action all season. Hal McKinn, a good relief hurler, also was injured and Garland Braxton failed to deliver.

Smead Jolley, a slugging outfielder suffered a fractured ankle, and has been unavailable except for pinch hitting jobs; Mel Simon, a star in the American association last season, is back in that league now, after having been almost useless here. Another relief hurler, also has been out because of injuries.

But the old Roman is still buying players and seeking trades to build a winner, and from his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., said his only ambition is to add another championship to the 1900, 1901, 1906, 1917, 1919 list.

He has been associated with baseball for the past 54 years, and was one of the organizers, with the late Ben Johnson, of the American league.

was in the majors for a brief period, getting his experience with Cleveland.

Oshkosh Indians bump into Webb Schultz and his pitching as they are slated to play at Red Granite. The Indians will try to do what other clubs in recent weeks have attempted and that is beat the wily Red Granite twirler.

At times Schultz has plenty of zip on the ball and his major league experience has taught him to throw them in there on the corners and never too good.

The league leaders will be at home at North Fond du Lac where they will prepare for the invasion of Charley Boettger's Berlin line.

Lines Written in Righteous Indignation

THE Indians are on the warpath again, in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and way points. The object is the scalp of Donnie Bush, Roger Peckinpaugh, Jewel Ems and other managers whose teams this year have fallen upon evil days.

Yet I believe that any of these gentlemen could manage a ball club like, let us say, the Athletics! It seems to me that the fact is too often overlooked that you can't run a pennant with your pitchers in hospitals and your clean-up hitters on the bench.

And I wonder how well Connie Mack or Gabby Street would fare as managers of the White Sox, Indians or Pirates.

A. L. WINS FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME IN INTER-LOOP SERIES

Bankers Are Defeated by Appleton Coated Paper Team, 11 and 8

If you should happen to see a softball player sneaking around the next corner in a manner which indicates he probably doesn't want to be seen, the said softball player probably belongs to a National league team.

Last Monday an inter league series of games between teams of the American and National leagues finished in the various positions was started. And the way the American league is bumping off the Nationals recalls fond memories of the certain world series games in the major league world.

The fifth straight setback for the Nationals came last night when President Eddie Starnard and his Bankers from the National league were walloped by the Coated Paper aggregation, 11 and 8. Coated scored 13 runs and the Bankers connected for 12. The Bankers won on errors, however, they had four and the Coated team three.

Last night's game was the last of the week's activity. Monday evening at Brandt park the league champions, the Fox River Paper company for the American league and the Bankers for the National league will clash in the first game of the city title series. The game will begin at 5:45 and his honor, Mayor John Goodland, Jr., probably will throw the first ball.

Calling the Strikes

New York (CPA)—Many seasons have elapsed since a left hand pitcher won 30 games in the major leagues, or a right hand pitcher, either, but Robert Moses Grove, the lanky southpaw of the Athletics, says he is on his way to that goal.

A year ago Grove had won 19 games and lost four. He finished the season of 1930 with 23 victories. Now figure it out. If he had 19 won at this time in 1931 and 28 at the season's end, and has 23 victories now, can he win 23 in 1932? Old Moss said he was going after his fish this year when he started training, and they are being strong for him.

Peck's Backsets

When the Indians started the season, Peck admitted that he had some infield and pitching worries. He didn't know the half of it. There proved to be a tremendous gap at third and short, and Second Base man Johnny Hodapp not only was out a great part of the time with injuries but forgot what his bat was for.

His infielders acquired the maddening habit of throwing home-run balls, and he had to peddle both, which left him in mid-season without a left hander of any kind.

Jewel Ems was confronted with an injury problem second only to that of Donie Bush. Besides, it was discovered that Barney Dreyfuss had made some trades that were not very hot. Ems has had to try to win ball games with an infield second to none.

And, oh yes, Bucky Harris' Little Bucky must know how Job felt in his trials and tribulations. Everything foul that could happen to a ball team has happened to Detroit. But can you blame Bucky because Gehring and Alexander were out with injuries? Or because his pitching staff, that in Spring looked great, turned out to be a bevy of Boston Bloomer girls in disguise?

They say golf is the most uncertain of pastimes. But surely baseball success is no foregone conclusion, either.

INLAND REGATTA TO START MONDAY

Expect 70 Class A, C and E Boats to Race on Lake Winnebago

Oshkosh (CP)—The vanguard of the fleet that will take part in the thirty-fourth annual Inland Lakes Yachting association regatta will be held five days, starting Monday, on Lake Winnebago here, already has arrived and is preparing for the races.

The bay in front of the Oshkosh Yacht club is swarming with boats, and Edward Brismarmer, measurer and assistant secretary of the association, anticipates that nearly 70 entries would be on hand for the regatta. St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago, and New York parties have already registered for the races, he says.

The fleet is expected to be as complete as last year when the regatta was held at Neenah except for the Hills brothers of the Minneapolis Yacht club, Minneapolis, who swept Class A last year with the Yellow Jacket. They have notified officials that they will be unable to compete.

Yacht clubs entered are: Cedar Lake, Delavan, Green Lake, Lake Geneva, Minnetonka, Oshkosh, Spring Lake, Milwaukee, Neenah, Nodaway, Pewaukee, White Bear, Pine Lake, and Pistakee.

Among the skippers, James L. Tomon, Pistakee, McHenry, Ill., and Joe J. Anderson, Edgewood, White Bear Lake, Minn., promise to command wide attention. They are 12 and 15 years old, and are expected to figure strongly in the daily special prizes given to winners, who never before have won races.

Judges of the races are J. C. Thompson, Col. H. I. Wood, and Edward T. Coe, all of Oshkosh, and W. L. Davis, of Neenah. Association officers are Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, Chicago, president; J. C. Kimberly, Neenah, vice-president; Charles P. Bray, Oshkosh, secretary-treasurer; John W. Pillsbury, Minneapolis, and J. V. McKee, Milwaukee, directors, and Edward Brismarmer, Oshkosh, measurer.

Three races, in Classes A, C, and E, will be held daily.

WHITE SOX, CUBS TO PLAY CHARITY GAME

Chicago (CP)—Chicago baseball fans will have an opportunity to see an advance showing of the 1931 city series Sept. 5, and street charity will be the beneficiary.

The Cubs and Sox, each having an open date, will meet and the entire "gate" will be turned over to Governor Everett's unemployment relief fund. Renewed Mountain Land will flip a coin to determine in which park the contest will be played.

The New York Yankees also helped in making the game possible. The White Sox were scheduled to open a series in the Yankee Stadium on Sept. 10, but the management of the eastern club consented to start the series on Sept. 11, with a double-header.

Both Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Sox and William Wrigley, Jr., of the Cubs, enthusiastically agreed to the opportunity to play a charity contest.

Eau Claire—Roger Bernard, Flint Mich., outpitched Charles Crocker, Iron Mountain, Mich. (10).

INDIANS RALLY TO WIN TWO GAMES IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Brewers Get Five Hits While Hens Maul Stiely; Lose 13 to 3

BY WILLIAM WEEKES

Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (CP)—After the first few weeks of the American association season Indianapolis fans wouldn't have given a dime for the Indians' chances of finishing in the first division—but look at those Indians now.

The club staggered about in the lower regions of the race until Emmett McCann superseded Johnny Corridan as manager. Since then, the Indians have rocketed into second place and seem likely to finish there. Not only that, but McCann has instilled a spirit in the club that will not admit defeat and the Indians have acquired the reputation of being the best "finishing" team in Thomas Jefferson Hickey's league.

Koenekne Homers

They made a couple of stretch runs yesterday to do Minneapolis out of a pair of decisions, 6 to 3, and 7 to 5. In both games they hit 11 to punch over the winning runs late in the game, and they were able to do it. Francis Sigafos exploded a triple with the bases jammed in the first game, and Len Koenekne, the $75,000 beauty, picked in with his sixteenth homer of the season with a man on, to make the victory safe.

In the second game, they clipped Wilson for two runs in the seventh after the Millers had tied the score. Berley Horne pitched six-hit ball in the second game, while Walt Miller pitched steadily enough to win in the opener.

St. Paul's potential championships were outlived by Louisville, 8 to 3, but won, 3 to 2, with the aid of six Colonel errors, though they were out by Babe Ganzel. Carl Mays pitched excellent baseball for Louisville, giving only five singles, but could not overcome the handicap caused by the misplays. The Saints today were nine and one half game in front of Indianapolis, which had a three and one half margin over Louisville.

Del Wetherill, who went to Toledo from Columbus in the deal for Revo Lebourveau, let Milwaukee down with five hits, while the Mud Hens were mauling Stiely and Nelson for 22 blows, two of which were triples by Ernie Wingard, and Toledo won, 13 to 3. Stiely, who pitches the best baseball in the league on some occasions, and the worst on others, was hatted from the box in the first inning.

Columbus and Kansas City whacked up a doubleheader, with the Blues winning the opener, 9 to 5, and the Red Birds took the second, 10 to 6. Ed Holley held the Birds in hand in the first game while the Blues slammed Carlisle, Littlejohn and Ken Ash for 17 assorted hits. In the second battle Littlejohn was credited with the victory when Al Eckert weakened and had to be rescued.

ST. LOUIS BOY WINS JUNIOR TENNIS TITLE

Chicago (CP)—Youthful golfers eyeing the western junior championship are mourning the St. Louis Blues today.

For the second successive year the junior title returns to St. Louis, possession of 13-year-old Robert Cochran. He won it yesterday by defeating Charles Becka of Chicago, 7 and 6. Cochran had command of the situation practically from the fifth hole.

Charles Collins, another mound city player, won the title a year ago.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Chicago—Owen Phelps, Phoenix, Ariz., outpunched Larry Johnson, Chicago, (6); Tom Patrick, Los Angeles, knocked out Battling Molloy, Chicago, (10); George Neron, New York, knocked out Marion Matuzak, Chicago, (1); Dave Malar, Milwaukee, stopped Ed Willis Chicago Six.

Utica, N. Y.—Steve Wolanin, Utica, outpunched Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill. (10); Mickey Barron, Scranton Pa., outpunched Tony Cannon, Cleveland, (7).

Green Bay-Neenah Game Feature Attraction In Little Fox Tomorrow

ALTHOUGH first division play of the Little Fox River Valley League game rivals what occupies the lower belts Sunday, games of the last few weeks indicate that the leaders may have anything but easy sailing Sunday.

Green Bay which invades Neenah, helped the league leaders to their present high position, giving Little Fox one of its five defeats. The Baymen, behind good hitting, are always dangerous and if Burnett's arm is well the star Bay representative will give the Merchants plenty of trouble to look over.

START WORK ON HIGHWAY GRADE SEPARATION JOB

New Forest Junction Viaduct
Expected to Be Completed in Three Months

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction—Peppard and Fulton, Superior, Wis., contractors, began work Saturday on the grade separation project here designated in the state highway commission's records as the West Forest Junction overpass.

The survey, previously made, was staked out earlier in the week, and actual work on the project was ready to begin after a delay for several months.

Unloading of some equipment shipped in from Rhinelander was the first step in the process which is to be followed shortly by the excavations and other preparations for the placing of the concrete abutments.

About two and one-half months will be required for the completion of the project, Mr. Fulton stated Friday. The concrete abutments to carry the overhead span will be completed at once so the work of filling in the ground approaches may be carried on simultaneously with the placing of the iron framework and other concrete to be used in the structure.

The viaduct will carry the relocated Highway 57 combined with Highway 10 across the Chicago and North Western railroad track one-quarter mile west of the village. The two highways will occupy the same course for a half-mile stretch from what is known as Alfred Ott's corner to the church corner in the village.

Widening of the highway course to accommodate the two routes occasioned a certain amount of friction with land owners adjoining and failing to reach agreements as to land values and damages, the county highway committee in each case issued an award of damages. Among lands affected is the eight-acre grove of the Appleton District Camp meeting association, where an annual camping season is held.

The stockholders' annual meeting will be held in connection with the annual encampment, but in the meantime, directors of the association have been negotiating with highway officials for a peaceful conduct of affairs.

AWARD DAMAGES OF $5,173 FOR CUTTING ROAD THROUGH FARM

Little Wolf Man Receives
Award from Waupaca-co
Court

Manawa—Award of $5,173.25 was made to Herman Czich, town of Little Wolf, for property damaged by highway construction. The award is divided by the construction of concrete pavement on Highway 22. County Judge William N. Martin made the award Wednesday. The hearing was held at Waupaca on Thursday and Friday of last week, testimony being taken the entire two days.

The amount given Mr. Czich exceeds by $172.25 the sum of his claim for damages to his farm. A slight increase, Ed. Carew, who was offered $725 at first, had the amount raised to $850 after taking the matter into court.

The thirty-seventh annual community picnic of the Waupaca-Old Settlers association will be held in Keating's grove, Ogdensburg, next Thursday, Aug. 20. An address by Dr. Henry W. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, will be featured.

The day's event, music will be furnished by the Iola-Scandinavia band. Other numbers on the program include: Community singing, led by M. R. Stanley, Shawano; a short address on the Passenger Pigeon by Rev. Francis Dayton, New London; selections by the winning WTAM radio quartet, Russell, M. R. Stanley, E. Louis Renter; vocal solo, Florence Lindsay; solo piano, Carolyn Boettcher, accompanied by Lucille Wichman of Appleton; violin solo, Oscar J. Hobb; dance in old fashioned costume, Lucille Ritchie; saxophone quartet; vocal duet, Arthur Ritchie and Everett Russell.

Fire Tuesday afternoon destroyed the 1928 Hudson sedan owned by A. Mankowsky of Kaukauna, owner of a fleet of trucks that has been operating on the paving construction job here. Mrs. Mankowsky was returning from Eau Claire to Manawa that afternoon. His car tipped over as he made the turn from highway 161 onto 22 three miles north of Manawa, and immediately burst into flames. Mr. Mankowsky was uninjured.

Sportsmen from the state game farm operated by the game division of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission at Waubesa, were being sent in care of C. A. Lindsay of the Lions club. These birds are part of the distribution being made this month to all pheasant districts in the state. The Manawa men will receive the pheasants as a reward for their cooperation in the pheasant egg hatching work last spring.

Paving of Highway 22 was completed to meet the concrete in Manawa. Wednesday morning, the workmen immediately moved back to the bridge over the Little Wolf river north of the Albert Hass farm to close the gap at that point. That bridge and the smaller one over the south branch of the river will not be finished for three weeks.

Work of shouldering the road is about half completed. The 3.9 miles of pavement should be entirely finished in another month, according to Charles E. Simpson of the firm of Simpson and Parker, Appleton contractors in charge of the job and should be ready for traffic shortly after the middle of September.

There was some talk this week of paying the block on Center-st. in Manawa east from the First National bank corner and the block on Union-st. east from Voss Bros. store. The latter also is a part of county project. The project will probably not be started, however, owing to the property owners were considered prohibitive at this time, and the county's share of constructing the block on N could not be approved without calling a special meeting of the board of supervisors.
